A Myth, Perhaps.
Mercy? Why?
Man Beats Nature.
In Proud Japan.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

JAMES ROOSEVELT, son of the President, back from Europe and talks with Pope Pius, Ramsay MacDonald, the French president Lebrun and Mussolini, reports that war talk is "all a myth."

That being so, perhaps he asked all, except the Pope, why they were spending so much money getting ready for war instead of paying their debts to the United States.

War would have been called a myth at the beginning of 1914, when there was no Hitler, promising revenge, and no Russia, laying down the law to proud Japan.

THE POSSIBILITY of war between Japan and Russia is no "myth." On Wednesday the Russian ambassador, in Tokio, his language hardly diplomatic, told Japan's government:

"I suggest that you stop flying your airplanes along the Russian border."

And Stalin, successor to Peter the Great's power, walked through the streets of Moscow, bareheaded, to honor Katayama, member of the Japanese Communist party, who died in Moscow.

Conservative Japan will not view that funeral with satisfaction.

SAMUEL SKOBLOW, called "the torch," admits that he has started "about 50 fires since 1931," being paid from $200 to $2,000 for each "job," depending on the amount of insurance collected.

Mr. Abranam Goldner, of Brooklyn, confessed to burning down Mrs. Rose Brenner's store, Mrs. Brenner collected $1,750 insurance. After Goldner's confession the jury recommended mercy. Why mercy?

Goldner wept in court, but admitted that he had not wept as he stood outside of Rose Brenner's store watching it burn, with tenants upstairs that might have been roasted.

WHATEVER nature does, men can do better Automobiles are swifter than deer, the rifle overtakes any bird, submarines go down to observe the fish, but no fish comes up to study us.

And the airplane flies three times as fast as any bird. Nature merely sets the example, then men show how it should be done.

Flocks of golden plovers have arrived at the Hawaiian Islands, two-thousand-mile flight from Bering Sea, in twenty-four hours.

Going ninety miles an hour, they rise high above the earth to find upper air currents that help them on their journey.

Soon long distance human fliers will go up high enough to get above storms, fog, hail and troublesome winds. Traveling from the Pacific to the Atlantic, they will go up six miles and sail along with the light breeze caused by the eastward movement of the earth, blowing as steadily as the famous trade winds.

When men fly around the world, as they will do, in twenty-four hours, in the thin upper atmospheric strata, flying will really have begun.

HERE WE discuss politics occasionally, dropping the subject for the more important work of selecting a new winter overcoat. Japan takes national affairs seriously.

Mr. Tendo Miyata thought the London naval treaty a disgrace to Japan, went to the doorstep of Admiral Tarakabe, who helped negotiate the treaty, and tried to commit hari-kari, cutting a hole in his abdomen fifteen inches long. The admiral's houseboy took away his knife.

The Japanese theory is that when you rip your stomach open on a man's doorstep you disgrace the man.

They would "get a laugh out of that" in American high finance. There they rip the other man's stomach open, financially.

FEDERAL AND state governments are concocting rules and laws for distribution of wines and liquors. Many of them will prove as foolish and unworkable, although perhaps less vicious than prohibition itself.

You read that nobody "selling for consumption off the premises may sell to any person more than three quarts of liquor at any time, or more than three gallons of wine."

Any ordinary citizen, having absorbed his three quarts of liquor and three gallons of wine, would probably be content with that ruling.

The dangerous feature, cropping out already, is the scheming of politicians to arrange such rules as will facilitate blackmail and graft.

THOUSANDS, otherwise unemployed, are seeking for gold, "panning" in innumerable western streams, and Denver reports an important gold strike, ore yielding as much as $33,000 per ton, in the Cripple Creek region.

With a million minds concentrated on gold discovery and production, this country might find it difficult to keep the dollar off the gold basis.

PITT STADIUM, Nov. 11.—Before a crowd of 50,000 rabid fans, the varsity elevens of Pitt and Duquesne clashed here this afternoon in the gridiron battle the city has been looking forward to since the inception of the present campaign.

Unbeaten in eight consecutive games, the Dukes were primed to make their greatest bid for fame against the powerful Panthers. Pitt, however, rules a strong favorite to crack the victory string of the Red and Blue. A year ago, in the first meeting in history between the rival institutions, the Panthers won by a 33 to 0 score.

Pitt has won five of its six games played to date, beating Wash-Jeff, West Virginia, Notre Dame, Navy and Centre. The only setback was handed the Panthers by Minnesota.

Child Dies After Swallowing Pills

Anne Lanzella, aged 19 months, of 626 California avenue, Avalon, died today in Suburban General Hospital, as a result of eating a quantity of chocolate covered pills.

The medicine, according to the report to the hospital, had been prescribed in small doses by the family doctor. The child, according to the report, got a box of the tablets and swallowed a number of them.

PITTSBURGH'S WAR VETS ON PARADE IN ANNUAL ARMISTICE DAY OBSERVANCE . . . . "WELL, PAL, 15 YEARS AGO TODAY I WAS AT A TOWN CALLED . . ."

CROWDS LINE CURB, MUTE IN RESPECT

Confetti Rains From Skyscrapers; Bands, Bugles Blare

World War veterans marched again today to the blare of bugle and beat of drum as war's panoply was revived in tribute to peace.

Thousands marched in the brilliant martial observance of the signing of the Armistice 15 years ago today. Many thousands more formed the human wall—silent in respect except for an occasional outburst of applause—through which the long line, resplendent in color, moved.

In the parade were khaki-clad men, now middle-aged, who, as youths trudged through Flanders Fields or braved gas and shell in the Argonne.

There were the graying veterans who battled in Cuba or the Philippines.

CAVALCADE OF HONOR

There in the place of honor was the little cavalcade of automobiles bearing war's wreckage—wounded vets—and the remnant of those who fought to preserve the Union in '61.

There were also the war nurses, women's auxiliaries, Gold Star Mothers, various ex-service men's organizations, units of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps, scores of bands and drum corps with their vari-hued uniforms.

And in the throng of those who marched and those who watched the spectacle commemorating the close of the war to end wars, one could sense they were asking within themselves:

"Must there yet be other wars?"

Four abreast the column forming Pittsburgh's fourteenth consecutive Armistice Day parade moved from upper Fifth avenue at 10:30 o'clock, led by John L. Bingham as chief marshal, and city mounted and motorcycle police.

SHOWER OF CONFETTI

Showers of ticker tape and confetti rained down on the heads of the marchers as the procession moved through the downtown skyscraper canyon, which is lower Fifth avenue.

Crowds packed the sidewalks, while other thousands looked out from vantage points of office windows, roofs and poles.

As the great guns ceased on the Western front at 11 a. m. November 11, 1918, so at that moment today the former soldiers halted for a moment in tribute to the memory of the war's dead.

Escorting the disabled veterans of the World War and veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic were the United Spanish War Veterans.

FOUR DIVISIONS

WRECK PERILS GRID CLASSIC

International News Service.

WATSONVILLE, Cal., Nov 11.—A clear track, straight to Los Angeles, was ordered by the Southern Pacific train dispatcher early today for the Sunset Limited, carrying the Stanford University football team to Los Angeles for a football game with the University of Southern California this afternoon.

The limited was delayed five hours when 100 feet of track sank deeply into the mud late last night at Elkhorn Slough, near here.

The limited finally got under way at 3 a. m., after a crew of 75 men had worked frantically to repair the section, which mired four feet into the mud.

Kickoff of the game is scheduled at 2:15 p. m. and advance ticket sales at Los Angeles indicated an attendance of 85,000.

Coach "Tiny" Thornhill, of Stanford, declared he would not put his team on the field unless it reached Los Angeles by 1:30 p. m.

Thorhill said he would not resort to airplane transportation, as he would not assume responsibility for an air trip by members of his team, many of whom are less than 21 years old.

WIDOW FREED IN KILLING

Freed of the charge that she had killed her husband, Mrs. Meta Miller was back in her Greenfield home today trying to forget the nightmare of the past three months.

A jury of five men and seven women last night returned a verdict of acquittal after it had deliberated seven hours over Mrs. Miller's plea that she had shot her husband, Fred, last August 9, in self defense.

Admonished against demonstration by Judge J. A. Chambers, of Beaver County, spectators whispered audibly, but remained orderly when the verdict was announced.

A short time later Mrs. Miller surrounded by neighborhood friends, walked from the courtroom to face alone the task of raising her family.

CHEERED BY SON

The jury retired to start its deliberations at 2 p. m. yesterday and during the long hours until

Kansas City Kidnap Victim Collapses

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 11.—(INS.)—Miss Mary McElroy, who last spring was a victim of kidnapers, is a patient in St Mary's Hospital here following a nervous collapse, it was revealed today.

Miss McElroy, daughter of H. F. McElroy, City Manager, assisted officers in tracking down her abductors, and last week she appeared as the state's chief witness in her prosecution of George McGee, who was given a life sentence for her abduction.

Hit-Run Motorist Smashes Window

A hit-run motorist who sideswiped two parked automobiles in Penn avenue early today and then crashed through a window of the Harry Pearlman Furniture Company at 1111 Penn avenue was being sought by police of the Forty-third street police station today. No one was injured.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Lenore Ulric, actress, has entered a judgment for $750 in the county clerk's office against A. C. Blumenthal in settlement of a suit she brought against him for $1,500, a week's salary for her appearance in "Nona," a play Blumenthal produced.

'Kidnaped' Baby Safe; Rich Youth Still Missing

International News Service.

WILMINGTON, Cal., Nov. 11.—Unaware of the alarm his disappearance from his home last night had caused, Peter Baldwin, 2, was found sleeping soundly at a neighbor's home today, police reported.

At first it was believed the child was the victim of kidnapers.

BABY SAFE IN BED

Ending a night's search, Mrs. A. H. Nerad, wife of a San Pedro police surgeon, notified Baldwin at 6:30 o'clock this morning that his son was "safe and sound in bed with my two little babies."

Mrs. Nerad said that she found Peter screaming in the street about 8 o'clock last night. Police quoted Mrs. Nerad:

"He was cold and crying. So I took him in and put him to bed with my children. Then we all went to sleep."

The Nerad residence is across the street from the Baldwin home.

How the screen on the porch of the Baldwin home happened to be cut was a mystery police were unable to explain.

YOUTH STILL MISSING

SAN JOSE, Cal., Nov. 11.—(INS.)—Amateurs and not eastern gangsters, today were believed responsible for the mysterious kidnaping of Brooke Hart, 22, graduate of Santa Clara University, and son of Alex J. Hart, wealthy San Jose merchant. Hart has been missing since 6 p. m. Thursday.

The kidnapers communicated with the elder Hart by telephone and by letter, but did not inform him how they expected him to deliver the $40,000 demanded as ransom.

Federal and state officers were busy running down every clue following the discovery of young Hart's automobile on the San Jose-Oakland highway.

The kidnapers in their second letter refused a plan of the elder Hart to use Attorney Louis O'Neal as an intermediary.

BANDIT'S SHOT MISSES

A gasoline station attendant was cut by flying glass early today when two bandits, their features disguised by cold cream, fired a shot through a glass door when the attendant refused to permit them to enter his station in Baldwin road.

William Nowak, 35, of 234 Meyran avenue, Oakland, the attendant, said the bullet missed his head by inches. Shattered glass cut him slightly on his face.

Two Negroes, one of whom was identified by Nowak, according to police, were arrested a short time later. They gave their names as Charles Robinson, of a construction camp in Baldwin Township, and Clifton Green, of Turtle Creek.

Bandits Imprison Three in Holdup

Police today were on the lookout for two armed men who held up Earl Welty, 22, attendant at the Shell gasoline station, 1800 Walnut street, McKeesport, last night, and escaped with $30 to $50 in cash.

The men imprisoned in a washroom Welty and two boys who were at the station. The robbers took $4 from Welty, rifled the cash register and cut telephone wires.

POLICE GUARD MEAT TRUCKS

Police today guarded meat trucks delivering the Sunday roasts. Butchers in local packing plants were called out on a strike last night and today the butchered meats were being delivered under police guard.

At the William Zoller Company plant it was said 265 men were called out last night by the recently organized Packing House Workers' Industrial Union, some of whose organizers are said to be affiliated with the Communistic Trade Union Unity League.

One of the promoters of the strike is Frank Kracik, described as a Communist.

Fried & Reineman reported 250 of its employes answered the strike call and Oswald & Hess said 75 of its men were out. The North Side Packing Company said 35 of its employes were out.

The Pittsburgh Provision and Packing Company reported no demands had been made on it and the western packing houses were not affected.

Demands of the strikers are said to include a 20 per cent increase in wages, a 3 per cent checkoff from the payroll for sick benefits and recognition of the union.

Texas Back on Rialto, Brother Weeps Alone

By DAVID P. SENTNER

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—The crowds she loved so well were missing today when the body of Texas Guinan, first hostess of night life, came back to her Broadway.

If it had not been for the police escort which accompanied the body from the Pennsylvania Station to a Broadway funeral parlor, nobody along the "Street of White Lights" would have known that Texas was back again.

A small group of the curious and of those associated with her in her heyday as a nightclub entertainer were at the station. The group also included her lawyer, her brother William P. Guinan and "boy friends" of the 45 chorus girls in the Guinan troupe. Tommy Guinan, who brought the body home from Vancouver where his sister died, showed deep emotion. He wept alone.

Amid the bustle of chorus girls carrying toy dolls and leading miniature dogs, the remains of Texas were efficiently transferred to a hearse. She was in a plain, walnut casket draped with a silken white ribbon.

Later, in Broadway state, Texas was in an expensive bronze casket in the gold room of the funeral parlor. The public and well-known theatrical figures began to dribble past the casket to view the body of the Texas cowgirl whose death marked the passing of the prohibition era.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon. It will be late enough so that all of Broadway can turn out.

Vet Runs Amuck, Routed By Tear Gas

Samuel Darvous, World War veteran, stood before the Police Court bar today, after police had used tear gas in a battle with him.

He was charged with beating his blind mother-in-law, chasing his wife out of their home at 246 McKinney lane, charging police with a bayonet when they attempted to arrest him, and barricading himself in until police were forced to use tear gas.

It was Armistice Day and Magistrate Thomas A. Jones in Central Police Court perhaps was inclined to be lenient when Darvous confessed he was drunk, and didn't know what he had been doing. The Magistrate asked Mrs. Violet Darvous, the veteran's wife, what he should do.

She answered:

"I don't care; I never want to see him again."

Jones held him for court.

Mrs. Darvous told the court he had been unemployed for a long time, but that last night he came home drunk; began to throw groceries about and curse, and scratched her blind mother, Mrs. Maud Shepler, 57.

The wife fled from the house with her two children, she said, followed by their police dog, "Jake." In a nearby field, Mrs. Darvous said, she fell limp. The dog returned and led the blind woman to her daughter's aid. Then neighbors called police.

Lieut. Edward McNichols testified he was met at the door by Darvous who threatened him with an old bayonet. Later a tear gas bomb was thrown in, but Darvous tossed it out, burning his hands. Then he surrendered.

Darvous said he couldn't remember anything until he saw the tear-gas bomb coming at him. He said he was 33, and had served 18 months during the war in the Navy.

U. S. RECOGNITION OF RUSSIA RESTS ON STALIN REPLY

AMERICA ASKS PAYMENT OF DEBT

Litvinoff Cables to Moscow Seeking Instructions

By KINGSBURY SMITH
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Quick American recognition of Soviet Russia today rested in the hands of Joseph Stalin, the Soviet dictator.

A reply to a report cabled Moscow concerning the conversations with President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull was awaited by Maxim Litvinoff, the Soviet Foreign Commissar.

On the nature of this reply depended the question of whether American recognition would be extended the Soviet regime before next Wednesday, when Litvinoff hopes to sail for home.

The report cabled Moscow by Litvinoff did not contain the draft of an understanding for recognition. On the contrary, it contained points on which this government insists the basis for an understanding on recognition must be based.

ASKS INSTRUCTIONS

Indications were that Litvinoff was asking for instructions concerning some of these points. If Stalin authorizes Litvinoff to concede the American viewpoint, an understanding on recognition probably will be reached before Wednesday. Otherwise, it may take longer to reach a compromise.

Although officials maintained silence concerning the points on which Litvinoff cabled for instructions, it was believed they were related to the debt question. This issue was used by authoritative sources to explain the fact that the discussions are not progressing quite as rapidly as was anticipated. It was pointed out that the memorandum on the $187,000,000 Kerensky debt alone covered 109 pages.

Furthermore, this debt was one of the problems on which difficulty had been feared. Moscow reports prior to Litvinoff's arrival indicated the Soviets would demand that approximately $60,000,000 of the $187,000,000 debt be eliminated from any arrangement to pay up.

BAKHMETEFF SUM

The former figure represented the amount spent by Boris Bakhmeteff, Kerensky representative in this country, after the latter regime had been overthrown by the Soviets. Some of it allegedly was used to finance the "White" armies in their struggle against the Soviets.

The Soviets, therefore, claim they cannot reasonably be expected to pay up money which was used to finance armies fighting them. However, the Kerensky debt was contracted with the government of the United States and thus President Roosevelt virtually is obliged to insist on recognition of its validity. Only Congress can make any concession concerning it.

On the other hand, recognition of any debts contracted by previous Russian regimes would involve the Soviets in obligations to Germany. Under the treaty of Rapallo, whereby Germany became the first big power to recognize the Soviets, the latter are obliged to grant Germany any concessions granted other powers on old debt claims which they recognize.

Another Armistice Day Parade -:- By QUIN HALL

COURT SPEEDS M'CLURE TRIAL

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—There was no Armistice today in the mass trial of 75 men whom the government seeks to convict as participants in a liquor "protection ring" which paid public officials to aid in flouting the prohibition law.

Driving toward a still indefinite conclusion of the case, nearing the close of its fifth week, Federal Judge George A. Welsh announced at last night's session that Armistice Day would not interfere with today's session.

Heading the list of defendants is State Senator John J. McClure, Republican organization leader of Delaware County, where the government charges the alleged "ring" operated.

Voluminous testimony concerning "fixing" of criminal charges against members of the ring, of tribute levied from operators of speakeasies and alleged disorderly houses fill the record of the case.

WALLACE TALKS HERE OF SOVIET

There is little significance for the farmer in the approaching recognition of Russia, in the opinion of Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, in Pittsburgh yesterday on his way to Chicago. Of agriculture he said:

"The industry pulls out of the depression it will bring agriculture with it. Recognition of Russia may mean an outlet for some of our cotton, but little else."

Wages are outstripping farm incomes this year, he said, but predicted the process tax on corn and hogs and the loans being made farmers on their products would bring agriculture into step with industry.

Disarmament Talk By Council Head

JOHNSON MUM ON 'OIL BABY'

TULSA, Okla., Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Cheered here by what he called the "friendliest, most homey, crowd he has addressed on his current tour," Gen. Hugh S. Johnson set his course today for Fort Worth, Tex., and an Armistice Day gathering.

Johnson declined to discuss at length the oil problem. He said:

"That is not my baby. Let Secretary Ickes speak for the oil industry."

The NRA administrator, in his first visit to his home state in two years, termed the NRA the successor to the "great American frontier" as a safety valve against depression.

He scored anew the "chiseler" and the "chiseler lover," and declared the NRA is "far ahead of its time schedule."

U. S. GIVES FORD CHANCE TO BID

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—A ruling by the comptroller general today left the way open for Henry Ford to receive governmental contracts, providing he complies with the NRA automobile code.

Secretary Wallace was advised by Comptroller General McCarl, however, that an affirmative statement of adherence to the code was not required for eligibility for federal contracts.

The burden of proof of noncompliance with the code rests on the government.

The comptroller general also said that the dealer in each case must agree to be financially responsible for any breach of the contract with the government.

The case was raised by a Ford dealer in nearby Maryland, who said he understood his bids for Civilian Conservation Corps trucks was to be rejected although low, because of Ford's position in connection with the code.

EXCHANGE QUIZ NATION-WIDE

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—A nation-wide inquiry into operations on stock exchanges was under way as the Senate Banking Committee forwarded questionnaires to 45 additional security markets throughout the country.

The questionnaire originally was prepared to be sent 15 of the most prominent exchanges, including those in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Detroit, Chicago, St. Louis, San Francisco and Los Angeles.

The committee then decided, at the suggestion of Ferdinand Pecora, special counsel, to include most of the minor exchanges.

LOANS TO CUBA QUESTIONED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Members of the Senate Stock Market Investigating Committee said today the State Department records relative to Cuban loans by the Chase National Bank, which they decided not to make public, contained frequent reference to the question of their legality under the Platt amendment.

Evidence submitted to the committee in open session disclosed Chase loans of $80,000,000 were made to the Machado regime after the late Enoch Crowder, then Ambassador to Cuba, had questioned the legality of a $100,000,000 loan under a provision of the Platt amendment forbidding loans that could not be serviced from ordinary revenues.

CUBAN REBELS GO ON TRIAL FOR LIVES

Americans With 1,500 Facing Courts; ABC Promises Battle

International News Service.

HAVANA, Nov. 11.—Facing probable execution, military leaders of this week's revolt against the Grau San Martin regime went on trial today before a summary court martial.

More than 1,500 prisoners taken during the revolt will be tried. Ordinary court martial was ordered for the military participants who did not take leading parts, and the many civilians involved will be tried in the civil courts.

Many foreigners were found among the civilian prisoners. Most of them were Spaniards, but there was a sprinkling of many nationalities, including two Americans. They were Wilfredd Alleyn, son of a wealthy former resident of Havana, and Carlos Manuel Rodriguez, steamship line employe.

LENIENCY ASKED

Only the military leaders were expected to be punished with death, and there were many pleas that even they be spared. The other prisoners were expected to receive prison sentences.

The government dispatched troops to several parts of the interior where rebel uprisings broke out, but declared the situation was well in hand. There still was little news from outside Havana, and the exact strength of the rebellious factions was uncertain.

ABC, powerful anti-government organization, announced again that the battle "had only begun," and that more bloodshed might be expected in the near future.

The government maintained its strict precautionary measures in the capital, enforcing the 7:00 p. m. curfew and keeping strong military guards on duty throughout the city all day.

OUTBREAKS QUELLED

SANTIAGO, Cuba, Nov. 11.—(INS.)—On the heels of the ill-starred military uprising in Havana, new revolutionary movements occurred in the interior of Cuba today but were quelled by prompt Federal action.

LEGISLATURE'S LEADERS IN PARLEY

Procedure at Extra Session Discussed In Meetings

By G. EVERETT DOYING
International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Nov. 11.—Informed by Gov. Gifford Pinchot that he wants all hard liquor sold by state stores and only for non-consumption on the premises, legislative leaders turned today to a round of week-end conferences for some line of procedure at the special session of the General Assembly convening Monday.

Liquor control and other subjects included in the call were to be discussed again Sunday by the Governor and a group of conferees consisting of political and legislative leaders and administration officers.

Party leaders in the House and Senate also will air their views on the program before them at various meetings.

13-POINT CALL

The 13-point call, involving almost two-score subjects, created a wave of speculation throughout political circles. Unless some compromise is reached and adhered to by interested factions, renowned for their differences in past sessions, few believe the desire for a "short and inexpensive" session will be realized.

Many of the issues are of a controversial nature and "leftovers" from the regular session last winter. Others bear the tinge of politics which Gov. Pinchot and Edward Martin, Republican state chairman, previously asserted should be taboo in regard to social legislation, liquor control, relief, public construction and educational matters.

RUM AND INCOME TAX

To raise money for a least a dozen purposes, the Governor suggested only two means—liquor taxation and an income tax.

In addition, he urged legislation to give statutory effect to 11 constitutional amendments approved by voters last Tuesday. This item was included to enable the General Assembly to set up machinery for payment of a soldiers' bonus.

Although money for the bonus can be obtained by issuing $50,000,000 in bonds, the Governor suggested no means of raising revenue to carry interest and sinking fund charges.

He proposed an income tax for the relief of schools and transfer of 53,000 miles of second-class township roads to the highway system to lighten the burden on local taxpayers.

He desires that receipts of state liquor stores, if established, be used for unemployment relief, old age assistance and unemployment insurance. Revenue from a liquor tax would be applied to a variety of things under his proposals.

The Republican organization is reported to be opposed to the state dispensary system. They prefer issuance of licenses to individuals but, like the Governor, will not tolerate a return of the saloon.

The scope of the subjects included in the call are so broad that consideration of all points would be virtually equivalent to a regular session of the General Assembly.

BACKS OUSTER OF HUMPHREY

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Removal of William E. Humphrey from the Federal Trade Commission by President Roosevelt was legal and Humphrey's successor, George C. Matthews, of Wisconsin, is entitled to the salary of the position from October 27, according to a ruling today by J. R. McCarl, comptroller general.

Humphrey contended the President could not remove him and that he is entitled to salary.

The law provides that the President can remove commissioners for neglect of duty, inefficiency or malfeasance of office and Humphrey contended he had not been guilty of any of these offenses.

M'NAIR VISITS GOV. PINCHOT

HARRISBURG, Nov. 11.—Mayor-elect William N. McNair, of Pittsburgh, called on Gov. Pinchot at the executive mansion last night. He stopped in Harrisburg to see the Governor while on his way to Middletown, near here, to visit members of his family.

It is understood that the Mayor-elect was interested in knowing whether the call for the special session of the Legislature contained anything to permit the lawmakers to take up the question of local taxation.

The call covers that phase and takes in investigation and reduction of the cost of local government including the taking over of all second-class township roads.

After spending the night with his relatives, McNair went to Philadelphia, where today he is being feted by Democrats and Independent Republicans in ratifying the victory against the Republican organization in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia.

Man Falls Off Span Into Railroad Yards

Harry Wright, 60, of 315 East Fifteenth street, Homestead, who slipped and fell from a bridge into the Pennsylvania Railroad yards at McKeesport yesterday, is in the McKeesport Hospital today. He suffered a fractured rib and bruises.

SHERIFF FIGHT LEFT UP IN AIR BY ARMISTICE

Recount Board Delays Final Tabulations Until Next Week

Frank I. Gollmar maintained the lead in a combined total of official and unofficial figures by 241 votes over John Heinz, his Democratic opponent.

Gollmar yesterday gained 161 net votes by the official count, the largest bunch in the Fifth District of the First Ward, where he picked up 104 over unofficial records.

During the two days of the return board, Gollmar has picked up 317 and Heinz 156 votes.

STANDING OF PAIR

The official vote in 61 districts, taking in the first five wards of the city, excepting two districts, and the first four district of the Sixth Ward shows:

Gollmar, 14,384; Heinz, 7,807.

The total made up of the combined official figures canvassed and unofficial figures is Gollmar, 165,534, and Heinz, 165,293.

An intensified renewal was promised Monday of the legal wrangling and succession of ballot box openings which marked yesterday's sitting.

The appearance of the election board of the Sixteenth District of the Fifth Ward, whose Democratic overseer refused to sign the the return sheet because of alleged irregularities, is expected.

EYE SHERIFF RACE

Sheriff Gollmar and Heinz provided almost the sole focus of interest for lawyers of both parties, checkers, and spectators yesterday.

The vital importance of every vote was apparent.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park enlivened the contest by appearing to ask that the ballot box of the Eighth District, Seventeenth Ward, be opened. The fate of the vote in this pronounced Democratic district, where some of the ballots were stolen, is seen as a crucial factor in tipping the scales of victory.

TWO FACE TRIAL

Winning his request over Democratic protest, Park merely had the contents of the box listed. He later questioned members of the board.

Among those appearing before the judges were two members of an election board, Mike Wandell and Carmen Bosco, who face trial Monday in the first of a series of election fraud cases, in which State Senator James J. Coyne is a defendant.

The board from the Ninth District, Third Ward, was summoned to produce a missing tally sheet. They found it in the personal statement envelope of Bosco in the ballot box.

The case went to the jury after Mrs. Miller's children, first Ernest, then Billy, took the witness stand and described how their mother's love was the only bright spot in an otherwise sordid home life.

Billy, blond and with tears in his blue eyes, told how his father once pushed his mother down a flight of stairs, "because she had asked for money to buy us food."

GIFTS TO YOUNG WOMEN

The children described how Miller had lavished gifts upon his wife's daughter by a former marriage, pretty Gertrude Wright, whom he seemed to flaunt in his wife's face.

The accused woman's devotion to her family was described by several witnesses for whom Mrs. Miller had washed and scrubbed.

Earlier, Mrs. Miller had told her story. She described the fateful scene, how she had pointed a gun when her husband, armed with a butcher knife, threatened her. She sobbed:

"His lips were purple and he was frothing at the mouth. I was trapped. I can't remember any more."

Mystery in 'Elopement' Tragedy of Heiress

CHICAGO, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Almost everyone was agreed today that Mrs. Merry Fahrney Parker-Pickering had acquired a new husband in the person of Frank Van Sands Eiszner—that is everyone but the principals themselves and their immediate families.

At the Oak Park home of the 23-year-old patent medicine heiress, her mother, Mrs. Emory L. Fahrney, branded the reported wedding a falsehood. And at the Eiszner home in nearby River Forest a young woman refused to give a direct answer when questioned.

Meanwhile the reputed bride and bridegroom (and there was a signed wedding certificate to indicate they were really that) dropped out of sight after the fatal automobile accident near Aurora, Ill., yesterday in which his brother, Donald Van Sands Eiszner, 25, was killed and two other men were injured as all were supposedly returning from the wedding.

Those who held to the theory that the young woman, who less than a week ago sought and was denied parental permission to go to Chile to marry Count George di Georgio, now en route there, was married, were:

Justice of the Peace E. M. Enderson, of Aurora, who said he performed the ceremony.

D. E. Currier, of Aurora, who said it took place in his home yesterday.

Last, but not least, to play a part in the strange mystery drama was Miss Day Porter, of Oak Park, who revealed herself as Eiszner's rejected fiancee.

Woman Returns $1,635 Found in Street

Otto R. Weinert, of 3723 Baytree street, has his money back.

The $1,635 payroll the head of the Red Star Transfer Company got at the Workingman's Savings and Trust Company yesterday, then lost, was returned to him last night.

It was found in East Ohio street, near Madison avenue by Mrs. John Kratt, of 6928 Manistee street, wife of a pensioned city fireman and mother of three children.

And was she surprised! She said today:

"I thought it contained gloves or some such article, when I saw it lying there. I stopped my car, got out and picked it up.

"Last night when I got home the family were talking about the man losing the payroll. I examined the package and rolled out the money, and did their eyes pop.

"Mr. Weinert stopped by last night and left a liberal and very satisfactory reward."

UNDERTAKER TO PAY EXPENSE OF SEWER VICTIM'S BURIAL

BODY WILL LIE IN STATE ON NORTH SIDE

'Mystery Girl' to Be Buried at Town Of Her Birth

Expenses for the burial of Margaret Schwickrath, the morgue's mystery girl, have been assumed by William Sirlin, funeral director, in whose chapel, 620 East Ohio street, the girl whom 50,000 people couldn't identify will lie in state until Monday, it was learned today.

Sirlin is a friend of the girl's aunt, Mrs. Katherine Springer, of Stockton avenue, who with her brother, John Schwickrath, of Haydenville, have been seeking funds for a conventional burial.

REMOVED FROM CELLAR

Accordingly, the girl's body was taken to the funeral parlors from the cellar of the morgue where it had been removed at the request of the brother. The burial will be in Haydenville, a community known as "The Onion," her birthplace.

Belief that the clothing found in Shaler Township was worn by the Schwickrath girl before she was shot though the heart and stuffed into an Allegheny boulevard sewer drop two weeks ago, was shattered last night when Mrs. Marie Laufner, proprietor of an East Ohio street rooming house, where the girl had lived, viewed it and declared it was not.

MYSTERY CLOTHES

Mrs. Laufner fingered the yellow and orange dotted dress, the torn apron and the fragment of coat lining, and declarer:

"This isn't her's. She never owned a dress like that. I did her washing and I know.

James Clawson, of 2001 Howard street, North Side, had come across the clothing while he was hunting in the vicinity. Detectives said it answered the description of the clothing worn by the Schwickrath girl when she was last seen alive.

MONONGAHELA HOST TO VETS

MONONGAHELA, Pa., Nov. 11.—Thousands flocked to Monongahela today for the annual Armistice day celebration by American Legion posts of the Monongahela Valley.

Between 3,000 and 4,000 legionnaires along with newly-organized Sons of World War Veterans were to March in a parade to start at 1:30 p. m. High school bands of the district were to participate. Maj. James E. Gee, of Allenport, Pa., former captain of Company A, 110th Infantry, was to be chief marshal.

A drum and bugle corps competition in line of march and a championship football game between teams of the Monongahela and California high schools were to be features.

Nine Children Flee Mahon Street Fire

Fire in the home of George Blakely, 2324 Mahon street, damaged the second floor last night. A faulty burner in the bathroom was said to have started the flames.

Nine children who were in the house escaped injury.

NO ARMISTICE FOR C. C. C.

There's work to be done at the C. C. C. camp in South Park today, even if it is Armistice Day, but there is a turkey dinner to be eaten tomorrow, too.

That about sums up the situation of the 52 Conservation Corps recruits and their officers assigned to clear up the brush in South Park, and they agree it's not a bad situation, even if they have been sleeping in a barn and eating in the basement of a farm house.

Scores of unemployed carpenters and sawmen have been hired by the government to build a mess hall and five barracks for the present recruits and 168 additional recruits due from Fort Meade, Md.

Capt. William G. Wharry, of the 307th Field Artillery Reserve, commander of the camp, explained the turkey dinner tomorrow was made possible through economizing on weekday meals.

Man Hit by Auto Dies in Hospital

Walter Patterson, 213 Buffalo street, Freeport, has been ordered to post bond by the Coroner's office in connection with the death of James Smolak, 51, of Creighton. Smolak, who, struck by an automobile alleged to have been driven by Patterson on Freeport road last Friday, died in the Allegheny Valley Hospital last night.

GERMANS VOTE TOMORROW

BERLIN, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Tomorrow, when the German marches to the polls to vote "yea" on the Hitler government's foreign policy, will mark the end of the most perfectly organized and minutely unified campaign the nation has ever seen.

Still resounding throughout the Reich today was the closing cry of the Chancellor's final campaign speech, delivered over a national hookup yesterday.

He said:

"Be true to yourselves. I do not need your vote, for I am firmly in the saddle. But you yourselves need the vote if you want to be true to yourselves."

Then he called upon his followers everywhere to back the government's stand for equality with other nations as a condition for Germany's return to the world disarmament council tables.

Unhurt in Crossing Crash, Faces Court

After escaping unscathed when the automobile he was driving was struck by a passenger train yesterday, Oscar Campbell, 48, of Camden Heights, was to be given a hearing in McKeesport Police Court today on a charge of driving under the influence of liquor.

Campbell, police reported, drove onto the Baltimore and Ohio tracks from Railroad street. His car was demolished. Another man in it was uninjured and ran.

SISTER DEAD, BROTHER DIES

The shock of seeing his sister dead was fatal to Henry Sauer, 73, of 118 Montville street, North Side, yesterday.

When Sauer heard the news of the death of his sister, Miss Elizabeth B. Sauer, who died yesterday morning, he hastened to her home, 115 Richey street. On his way home a few hours later, he fell unconscious in the street. A passing motorist picked him up and took him to his own home, where he died five minutes later.

Requiem high mass for both will be in Nativity Church, Franklin road, North Side, Monday at 10 a. m. He leaves two daughters, Mrs. Andrew Schaeffer and Mrs. George Lutz. Both leave five sisters, Emma, Anna, Clara, Rose Sauer and Mrs. Louis Wamser, all of the North Side, and two brothers, Frank C., of Pittsburgh, and George N. Sauer, of Dayton, O.

AUSTRIAN SLAIN IN BORDER FIGHT

International News Service.

VIENNA, Nov. 11.—Despite proclamation of martial law throughout Austria a serious clash occurred today at Bregenz near the Bavarian border, in which one Heimwehr trooper was shot and killed and another grave'y wounded.

The attacking parties, believed to be Nazis, escaped, whereupon the entire Bavarian frontier was ordered closed and all border guards were reinforced.

Bloodhounds were set on the trail of the murderers, who, under the terms of the martial rule, will face execution within three days after their conviction.

SAFECRACKERS SCARED OFF

Pre-Armistice Day celebrators frightened away safecrackers who bored a hole in the safe of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company's Homestead offices, Hays Building, last night before they could obtain any loot, Homestead police believe.

E. W. Garvin, company superintendent, discovered the damage to the safe when he opened the offices this morning.

Other tenants in the building recalled that they heard a car full of "celebrators" run over the curb in front of the building last night. Homestead police, who are investigating, theorize that the thieves thought the police were arriving.

NEW BRIGHTON FETES VETS

NEW BRIGHTON, Pa., Nov. 11.—New Brighton is host today to legionnaires of the tri-county district at the fifteenth anniversary of Armistice Day.

Two pageant parades feature the day's program. Legionnaires and semi-military and fraternal organizations were marching this morning and a mummers' parade followed by Halloween events will take place tonight. Lieut. Laverne Craven is chief marshal of the parade.

Exercises were being held in the high school auditorium immediately following the morning parade. A. G. Helbling, commander of the Anderson-Adkins Post, was to be master of ceremonies. Speakers were to include President Judge Frank E. Reader; S. Warren Lyons, superintendent of New Brighton schools, and Attorney F. C. Clair Ross, Butler. Elmer Kross, New Brighton, will award the trophies.

During the afternoon a card party will be held for the Legion auxiliaries. New Brighton and Ellwood City High schools football teams will meet in a scheduled game at the high school field at 2:20 o'clock.

The mummers' parade will start at 7 p. m. and this will be followed by a street dance.

VET'S TWO SONS BORN NOV. 11

For one hundred and twenty million people, this is Armistice Day, but for one East McKeesport veteran it is, first of all, the birthday of his two sons, born exactly two years apart, even to the hour.

Bobby is one year old today, and Billy is three. That's almost enough to make their father, Guy W. Hampton, of 213 Chicora street, forget that he's been out of work for more than two years.

So Guy, who served 14 months with the American Army in France, isn't going to parade today. No sir, he's going to stay home and help Bobby and Billy celebrate.

bert T. Yahres, county commander and chief marshal. Next marched 50 posts of the American Legion, led by George Grimm, county commander.

Miscellaneous ex-service men's organizations made up the third division, with Ronald L. Thompson as marshal.

Col. William R. Dunlap commanded the fourth division, made up of active service units, including National Guardsmen and reserve officers.

Across the Sixth Street Bridge the line moved thence to Stockton avenue to Ridge avenue past the reviewing stand.

Reviewing the parade were soldier visitors here as honor guests for the observance. Among them were Maj. Gen. Edward C. Shannon, lieutenant-governor and wartime commander of the 111th Infantry; Maj. Gen. Adelbert Cronkhite, former commander of the 80th Division; Maj. Gen. William G. Price, Jr., wartime commander of the 33rd Artillery Brigade of the 28th Division and former commander of the Pennsylvania National Guard; Gen. E. G. Peyton, national commander of the 80th Division Veterans Association, and State Commander William J. Best, of the American Legion.

'LAST MANS' CLUB'

Principal among veterans' reunions last night was that of the 111th Infantry Association and the Last Man's Club, consisting of 11 former members of the 107th Field, 28th Division, who enlisted on the same day. Both were held in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

At the former, a gubernatorial boom for Maj. Gen. Shannon, their wartime commander, was started when the group adopted resolutions urging him to enter the race for Governor next year. He is the present Lieutenant Governor and commander of the Pennsylvania National Guard.

SHANNON BOOM

The resolution was enthusiastically adopted as Congressman Matthew A. Dunn, Democrat, and County Treasurer Robert S. Cain, Republican, praised the veterans selections. Congressman Dunn said:

"I don't hestitate to say that he would be one of the most humanitarian men you have ever put into office. I hope that Gen. Shannon will not only be the choice of the Republicans, but the Democrats as well."

Mr. Cain said:

"I don't care what party accepts or what party rejects, I'll follow Gen. Shannon wherever he goes in his fight."

Expressing his appreciation, Gen. Shannon said he could only promise "that if such an honor should come to me I will live up to the requirements my friends here have laid down for me."

'OUR NEXT GOVERNOR?'

The spirit of the boom was caught by Maj. Gen. Price, who singled out Gen. Shannon as "this distinguished gentleman who will probably be our next governor."

The celebration will close tonight with the annual military ball in the William Penn Hotel in which 50 American Legion posts in Allegheny County will unite for the benefit of the legion's charitable activities. The 111th Infantry Veterans Association will also hold a ball in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

EDITOR SCORED FOR WAR RAP

And all because he dedicated an issue of his high school magazine, "The Scholastic," to the horrors of war.

The issue has been out three days. And today, Armistice Day, he received 200 cancellations, several threatening letters and word that 175 copies had been burned in a West Virginia military school.

Robinson, who served in the Army during the World War, explained that the magazine showed horror pictures of the war, obtained from Laurence Stallings; a story against the R. O. T. C.; stories of experiences by soldiers, and poetry depicting the sordid side of battle.

World Tribute Recalls Peace of 15 Years Ago

Associated Press.

The nations paused today to revive memories of a peace which came to a war-torn world 15 years ago and to honor those who fought and died in the great war.

In Washington the President and Mrs. Roosevelt turned toward the tomb of the unknown soldier to place flowers there.

England's observance of Armistice Day centered around the Cenotaph in London, where the Prince of Wales acting for King George, planned to place a wreath in memory of Britain's war dead.

France mustered a brilliant military display in Paris. A ceremony at the tomb of the unknown soldier under the Arc de Triomphe attended by President Lebrun and members of his cabinet headed the program. American war veterans in Paris also marked the day.

Italy, which celebrated Armistice Day a week ago, the anniversary of the ending of the war on the Italio-Austrian front, held another celebration, this time in honor of Victor Emmanuel's sixty-fourth birthday.

The Irish Free State began its celebration last night with a noisy demonstration in Dublin culminating with the burning of two British Union Jacks on the college green.

Germany and Austria do not observe Armistice Day, but both had special events before them, Germany an election tomorrow, and Austria the fifteenth anniversary of the founding of the republic.

'WAR AND PEACE' THEME FOR ARMISTICE SERMONS

LEGION POSTS TO ATTEND CHURCHES

"War and Peace" will be the general theme in many local pulpits tomorrow as the various congregations observe the fifteenth anniversary of the Armistice that ended the World War. In many of the churches Legion posts will be the honor guests.

The sermon of Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson of Rodef Shalom congregation, at 11 a. m. will be on "Peace, Peace, But There Is No Peace." His sermon will be in honor of Pittsburgh Post, No. 49, Jewish War Veterans of the United States.

In Epiphany Catholic Church, the Rev. Law A. O'Connell, will preach a special sermon appropriate for the occasion. There will be a solemn high mass at 11 a. m. The junior and senior choirs, singing in four voices Lorenzo Perosi's masterpiece.

The Rev. W. V. Parsons, pastor of the Brighton Road Presbyterian Church will speak on "For What Did They Die" in the Armistice service in that church. The quar-

In Epiphany Catholic Church, "In Flanders Fields." One minute of silence will be observed, followed by taps.

In the East End Christian Church, there will be a special meeting of the Men's Bible class when a silk flag will be presented to the class in honor of the 75 members who served in the war. At 11 o'clock the Rev. Dr. J. R. Ewers will preach on "Soldiers."

Other Armistice Day sermons include:

"Armistice Day Message," Butler Street Methodist Episcopal; "The Armistice Fifteenth Anniversary," East Liberty Presbyterian; "Peace or War," Pacific Avenue Methodist Episcopal; "Peace Hath Her Victories no Less Renowned than Those of War," St. Peter's Episcopal; "The Forward Look for Peace," Ben Avon Presbyterian; "War Losses," Grace Methodist Episcopal, Sharpsburg; "The Quest of Peace," Edgewood Presbyterian; "Follow Peace with All Men," Sheraden Methodist Episcopal; "The Appalling Horror," Sheraden Presbyterian; "Obstacle to World Peace," Mt. Pisgah Presbyterian, Greentree; "Is It Peace?" Mt. Lebanon Presbyterian, and "War for Peace," Concord Presbyterian Church, Brownsville avenue.

The Story of David -:- CHAPTER II -:- Told in Pictures by Dan Smith

When Saul was troubled his servants urged him to seek out a cunning player on an harp, and said, "When the evil spirit from God is upon thee, that he shall play with his hand and thou wilt be well."

Then his servants told Saul about David, son of Jesse, and Saul sent messengers to Jesse bidding him "Send me David, thy son." And Jesse loaded an ass with bread, a bottle of wine and a kid, and sent David with them.

Thus it came to pass that David stood before Saul, and Saul loved him greatly and made David his armourbearer. And Saul sent word to Jesse that David had found favor in his sight. And when the evil spirit from God was upon Saul, David took an harp and played upon it with his hand; and when Saul heard David playing upon the harp he was refreshed and became well, and the evil spirit that had been upon him departed from him.

ELDERS ATTEND DEDICATION

Elders John L. Riley and Byron L. Holdren and a delegation of the local members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints have just returned from the dedication of the new Memorial Chapel in Washington.

The new building, of Utah birdseye marble, is the only one in the world built of this material. The marble has what is termed a satin hone finish and at different times of the day has different hues. After rain the effect is that of highly polished marble which changes on drying to a hazy purple. The chapel has a seating capacity of 360 and the building contains a recreation room, with stage, gymnasium, Boy Scout room, Relief Society room, dining room and class rooms. At the pinnacle of the difice is a huge figure of the Angel Moroni, a replica of the monument on the center spire of the Sale Lake Temple.

The local branch is at 4928 Wallingford street, Pittsburgh, where services are held on Sunday at 10 a. m. for Sunday school and 11:45 a. m. for church services. On Friday at 7:30 p. m., the Relief Society and priesthood meet, and at 8:30 the Young Men's and Young Ladies' Mutual Improvement Association meets.

'Immortals' Subject Of Science Church

"Mortals and Immortals" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Scientist churches tomorrow. The golden text is "The earnest expectations of the creature waiteth for the manifestations of the sons of God."

BISHOP HAYES PAYS VISIT TO OLD PARISH

Stops in City on His Way to Conference In Washington

In Pittsburgh on his first visit since assuming his duties as head of the Helena, Montana, diocese, Bishop Ralph L. Hayes was being greeted today by friends.

Bishop Hayes arrived in Pittsburgh Thursday, and is spending a few days at the parish house of St. Catherine's Church, Beechview, where he was once pastor.

Next week, he will go to Washington for a meeting of bishops to be held Wednesday and Thursday in conjunction with the National Catholic Welfare Conference.

Looking well and healthy after his stay in the west, Bishop Hayes says that the climate of Montana is the best in the country.

His diocese, he stated, includes about one-third of the state a territory slightly larger than Pennsylvania. About 6,000 Indians are numbered among the Catholics of the diocese.

Asked if he intended to see the game today at the stadium, Bishop Hayes said that he hadn't heard of it. Informed that Duquesne, his alma mater, is playing Pitt, he remarked:

"Perhaps I'll be there, if the weather clears up—and if I can get a ticket."

Philadelphia Pastor Tabernacle Speaker

The Rev. William T. MacArthur, of Philadelphia, will be the speaker at tomorrow's anniversary services in the Gospel Tabernacle, Arch street.

Service to Honor Dr. J. K. M'Clurkin

A memorial service will be held in Sharyside United Presbyterian Church, Cypress street and Center avenue, tomorrow morning commemorating the tenth anniversary of the death of Rev. Dr. John Knox McClurkin. The Rev. Dr. A. Gordon MacLennan will preach on "Lest We Forget."

At 4:30 p. m. Dr. MacLennan will speak on "Strength Through Weakness."

LUTHER'S 450TH BIRTHDAY TO BE MARKED

Forty Lutheran churches of Allegheny County will join in a monster mass celebration of the four hundred and fiftieth anniversary of Martin Luther's birth, tomorrow afternoon in Soldiers' and Sailors' Memorial Hall.

The speaker will be the Rev. Dr. H. B. Hemmeter, president of Concordia College, Conover, N. C. Dr. Hemmeter held two pastorates in this city, those of St. Andrew's Church, East End, and Trinity Church, Brownsville road. He is the author of several religious books, the latest being his "Book of Prayers."

The Bach Choir under the direction of Robert Reuter will sing "Sing, Pray and Walk" and "Gladsome Radiance." A children's chorus of approximately 400 voices also will sing. The congregational singing of some of Luther's many hymns will be led by four trumpeters.

Today there are more than 82,000,000 followers of Martin Luther in the world, found in 75,000 congregations and served by 50,000 pastors. In the United States the Lutheran Church has 4,275,000 baptized members on its roll, with 11,780 ministers and 15,546 congregations.

These followers of Luther still hold to the principles enunciated by the Reformer in the 16th Century, namely, the supremacy of the open Bible, the justification of the believer through faith in Christ Jesus, the universal priesthood of the believers, and the complete separation of church and state.

CHOIR TO SING VOTIVE MASS

Sacred Heart choirs of 80 men and boys will sing the solemn votive mass of the Blessed Sacrament at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning. Edgar Bowman will play "Adore te Devote," by Boellmann, before the mass. The ordinary of the mass will be the "Missa Choralis," for four mixed voices, by Refice, and there will be an additional offertory, "Panis Angelicus," by Palestrina.

The Rev. V. I. Kennedy will be celebrant of the mass, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Howard J. Carroll, deacon, and the Rev. Dr. E. Lawrence O'Connell, sub-deacon.

The Rev. Thomas F. Coakley will be master of ceremonies.

In the evening at 7:45 there will be services consisting of the Litany, procession and singing of the Te Deum, representing the closing of the 40 hours.

Foreign Mission Worker to Talk

Experiences in Japan, Korea and India will be told by Mrs. W. C. Heslop, a returned missionary, in the Duquesne Heights Methodist Episcopal Church, Sycamore and Oneida street, at 7:45 p. m. Tuesday. The Rev. O. B. Patterson is pastor of the church.

Food, Drug Exhibit Slated for Church

John Cain, food and drug inspector for the United States Department of Agriculture, will show an exhibit of food and drugs entitled "Unfit for Consumption," in the Hiland Presbyterian Church, Perry highway, tomorrow evening.

Minister to Start 'Dad' Sermon Series

The Rev. Dr. T. H. Gallagher, of Calvary Methodist Episcopal Church, tomorrow will begin a series of addresses on "Dad." His theme for tomorrow evening is "Dad Himself."

DR. CADY TO PREACH HERE

Missionary Secretary Talks Tomorrow in Two Churches

DR. GEORGE LUTHER CADY

The Rev. Dr. George L. Cady, executive secretary of the American Missionary Association of the Congregational and Christian churches, will be the preacher tomorrow morning in the German Evangelical Protestant Church, Smithfield street. His theme will be: "What Is It All About?"

Dr. Cady will give a lecture illustrated with stereopticon pictures tomorrow evening in the Congregational Evangelical Protestant Church of McKeesport, the Rev. John F. C. Green, pastor. The title of the lecture is: "F. F. A.—or the First Families of America." It will deal with the American Indians.

HERRON PLANS TO PARE BUDGET TO AVOID TAX RISE

DEPARTMENTS ASK BIG FUND INCREASES

The city's budget requirements for 1934 as submitted by department heads to Mayor John S. Herron total $23,025,835, an increase of approximately $2,000,000 over this year's appropriations.

If 1934 requirements are approved by the Mayor and City Council it will mean a total millage increase of two and six-tenths over the 1933 rate of 20.6 on land and 10.3 on buildings.

There is, however, little danger that the new year's tax levy will be larger than the 1933 levy, according to Mayor Herron, who said:

"We will try to hold the 1934 budget down to a figure that will not require a higher tax levy."

WILL REVIEW FIGURES

Mayor Herron said he would review the new budget with his department heads after his auditors have compiled estimates as submitted by departments. The auditors now engaged on the budget are H. S. Breitenstein and W. W. McCracken.

It is likely the auditors will have their work completed by Wednesday of next week. The Mayor and his cabinet will make changes they deem necessary and send the budget to the printers. City Council will review the printed budget and make the final decision on 1934 requirements.

Auditor Breitenstein said late yesterday that Council should receive the printed budget about December 1.

MORE POLICE SOUGHT

The increase of approximately $2,000,000 in requirements is partly due to the fact that Director of Public Safety Harmar D. Denny, Jr., has added 500 policemen to his 1934 budget, Breitenstein said yesterday. This increase, the auditor said, would cost the city $750,000.

Denny announced his plan several weeks ago, but Mayor Herron replied that he had no chance of getting the 500 "or anything like that number."

The Department of Public Works' estimated requirements for 1934 are $200,000 over its 1933 appropriation and the Welfare Department's requirements are $300,000 higher, Breitenstein said.

COUNCIL ACTION ON GARBAGE DUE

City Clerk Robert Clark announced yesterday that Council will convene Monday for regular meetings after a recess of approximately three months.

The first major ordinance to be considered will be the long-term garbage and rubbish proposal, Councilman Frank L. Duggan promises.

Duggan, chairman of Council's health committee, said last week he would call the ordinance out of his committee the next time Council met. Providing for a one, three or five-year contract, it has lain in Duggan's committee for more than six months without action.

Council Monday is to act on the ordinance licensing Sunday football and baseball games. As drawn by the law department, it provides for a license fee not to exceed $50 per game.

Crib With Twins Asleep Burns, One Hurt

Fate dealt differently with George and John Whiteman, 7-month-old twins, when the crib in which they were sleeping at the home of their parents, 136 Dorothy street, Wilkins Township, caught fire.

John was uninjured and is at home.

A short circuit in a bed lamp caused the fire in the crib yesterday, firemen said.

32 VOTE FRAUD TRIALS LISTED

Thirty-two defendants named in six of the indictments returned by the federal grand jury that investigated the Congressional election last November have been listed for trial at the Federal District Court term convening Monday. They are charged with conspiracy.

Three panels of petit jurors of 125, each to serve two weeks, have been summoned to cover the six-week period. Whether the term will be continued beyond that time has not been decided. If not, a special session probably will be held before the next regular term in May to try more of the election cases, it was said.

United States Attorney H. S. Dumbauld has listed 25 other cases for trial at the first week of the term, among them 14 liquor prosecutions. He will also present before the grand jury 35 cases for investigation, including 14 alleging liquor violations.

The defendants in the first election case, listed for the opening day, are Mike Wendell, judge; Carman Bosco and Charles P. Betters, inspectors, and James Stuhlfire and Louis D. Petty, clerks, of the election board of the Ninth District, Third Ward. Another defendant is George Taylor, election constable.

LINKS RELIGION WITH NRA

Religion is on trial and the NRA is the judge, in the opinion of Rabbi B. Benedict Glazer, of the Rodef Shalom Congregation.

Attacking the era of rugged individualism under President Hoover, Rabbi Glazer told the Council for Peace and Social Action, in the Downtown Y. M. C. A., yesterday:

"We must admit religion is one of the preservative forces of the status quo and can become an enemy of social progress. Religion must support the moral gains established by the NRA, because it recognizes the validity in fact that moral considerations must be taken into account in the councils of human relationships."

Other speakers at the round table discussion on "A Planned Society" included Joseph A. Beck and Bishop Francis J. McConnell, of the New York Area of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Concluding sessions will be held today.

TWO QUALIFIED FOR ASSEMBLY

The elections of Peter W. Murphy, as representative of the Third Legislative district, and William J. Gallagher of the Second Legislative district, have been certified to Secretary of the Commonwealth Richard J. Beamish.

The ballots cast in the special election Tuesday were hastily counted by clerks in the office of Prothonotary John W. Vogt in time for the special session of the Legislature Monday.

Both are Republicans. Murphy was named to succeed the late Charles T. Dwyer, and Gallagher to fill the post vacated by George C. Metzier, recently appointed a police magistrate.

Junior Patrol Mail Box

We want you to tell us some things, fellows!

For instance, who is your favorite movie star? What movie did you like best lately? What books have you read? What is your favorite kind of dog? Write a letter, Junior Patrol members, and answer some of these questions, and others, too, if you want.

We're anxious, too, to know what you are doing to help others. Junior Patrols everywhere should have a program for helping others all the time. Even when you are planning a party or some other good time, the captain should see if he can't think of some way to make other less fortunate fellows happy at the same time.

Donald Pubio, of 23 Shingess street, McKees Rocks, is a new captain this week. His letter today encloses another pledge and now he has enough to have a real patrol. His members elected him captain before, but he didn't send all their pledges right away.

And now here's a letter from Betty Lou Wagner, of Glasgow road, R. D. 5, Wilkinsburg. She says in her nice letter to Junior:

"Junior, don't forget that I am one of your members. Where are you having your club? In the paper you are having a football team. If you tell me where you are having your team I might come down and see it. Write me a letter and tell me where your club is and where your team is. And what time it is. I hope you had a nice time at the Hallowe'en party. I'm sorry I didn't come. Do you have any more pins? I lost mine."

It's this way, Betty. Junior's club and team is wherever a Junior Patrol Club has a team and there are many, many of them all over the country. Junior is in the comic strip himself, but he is organizing the Junior Patrol clubs, and in the comic strip Junior just does the things boys do everywhere. Join a Junior Patrol club, Betty, and start having all the fun of belonging to a real Junior Patrol. Or maybe you could start one of your own. If you will send another pledge, we will send you a new pin and card.

How about it, you Junior Patrol members? Why don't you start a Junior Patrol club if you don't belong to one? We want a club in every neighborhood!

PASTOR WINS DIVORCE

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Nov. 11.—The Rev. Thomas F. Presnell, of the Brethern Church at Aleppo, was granted a divorce from Mrs. Evelyn Coons Presnell, of Long Beach, Cal., who he charged deserted him because he refused to give up his pastorate at Aleppo and join her and her mother, Mrs. Jessie V. Coons, in traveling evangelistic work.

They were married in Long Beach in 1929 and lived happily at Aleppo, he stated, until one year later, when his mother-in-law came to Cameron, W. Va., and persuaded her daughter to become a traveling evangelist.

Boy Prisoner Flees Jail to See Mother

NORRISTOWN, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Prison walls mean nothing to 19-year-old Stanley Chlewinski when he wants to see his mother.

He escaped from Montgomery County Prison yesterday by scaling a 30-foot wall. He made his way to Swedesburg, met his mother, then walked into the office of Justice of the Peace Edward Parlecki and surrendered.

Snow Halts Erie's Armistice Parade

ERIE, Pa., Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Erie's Armistice Day parade is called off because of snow and cold weather.

"Seven years of music in seven minutes," is the engaging title of Don Bestor's broadcast slated as part of the "parade of orchestras," commemorating the NBC seventh birthday next Monday morning.

Bestor figures to play the biggest song hit of each of the past seven years. What are they? Well, the music publishers say they go like this: 1927, "My Blue Heaven;" 1928, "Sonny Boy;" 1929, "Carolina Moon;" 1930, "Springtime in the Rockies;" 1931, Goodnight Sweetheart;" 1932, "Shanty in Shantytown;" 1933, (you guessed it) "The Last Roundup."

Leon Belasco: "Radio studios are the sponsorial parlors where you go to have your wages shaved."

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

If the letters sent here are any indication, the 15 years since the Armistice was signed passed like a day for many of the soldier boys. Contrary to what many may believe the letters indicate that it wasn't the horrors of war that lingered in the memory, but the good times, the songs, and the verses fashioned while in camp or waiting to "move up."

Besides the parade there will be another attraction. After the football game either Joe Lubas or George "Derby" Stokes will be riding in a wheelbarrow from the Sun-Telegraph building to McKees Rocks while the other one pushes.

Joe bet on the Dukes and George on Pitt.

I didn't realize it until one morning mail that some of the loyal globe trotters felt that an unfair advantage was taken of Mr. McNair by the asking of such pointed and personal questions in the recent air interview.

To correct that impression let me say that the Mayor-elect and myself were together earlier in the afternoon and he welcomed those questions.

He says that he doesn't have to dodge issues and he doesn't want to. He likes to go straight to the point—tell you exactly what he thinks, and if you don't like it, then he'll hear you.

If the voters want something different, well, he'll change. He made it clear that he's there to carry out the people's wishes.

Sleuths Trailed Mate To Rival, Wife Says

Florence Swaney, of 333 Virginia avenue, who has filed a divorce action against Frank Swaney, revealed in a petition on file today, seeking alimony, that she hired detectives who, she asserts, trailed her husband to the apartment of a Philadelphia woman.

In her divorce action Mrs. Swaney named the woman, but did not reveal the circumstances of her charges until the petition for alimony for herself and three sons, Billie, Dick and Frank, aged 8, 12 and 14, bobbed up in Common Pleas Court.

Mrs. Swaney said it cost $350 to hire the detectives. As a result of their efforts, she said, Swaney and the other woman were arrested and posted bond for trial at Philadelphia.

She asks $200 a month, saying she is without funds. Swaney, who is employed by a steamship company, filed a divorce action August 4, charging cruel and barbarous treatment.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

Monday the debs will have to lunch at home, something they haven't been doing much of this fall, what with debut luncheons and luncheons for debts that weren't debut parties.

In the afternoon there'll be a tea when the John M. Freeman's daughter, Evelyn, who has a most interesting profile, by the way, will be presented. Her mother will give a tea for her in the family home.

Tuesday piquant young Betsy Liggett, the daughter of the Sidney Liggetts, of Sewickley Heights will "come out" at a tea her mother will give in the Allegheny Country Club—the first deb entertainment there this year.

Betsy's aides will all be debs of the season but one, Dorothy Blaxter, who came out a year ago. Her deb aides will be Alice Brown, Virginia Evans, Evelyn Freeman, Mary Gordon, Margaret Griffiths, Margery Hillman, Gretchen Lappe, Eleanor Jane McKennan, Margaret Mitchell, Margaret Robinson, Mary Sutton, Margaret Taylor and Barbara Verner.

Aides for Bud Party

The bud's mother is having 10 aides. They will be Mrs. J. Twing Brooks, Mrs. A. S. Freeman, Mrs. Thomas Atterbury McGinley, Mrs. John C. Neale, Mrs. Henry Oliver, Mrs. Henry H. Robinson, Mrs. Moses Jedell Suydam, Mrs. B. R. B. Townsend, Mrs. John S. Wendt and Mrs. Elmore A. Wills.

Off for Winnipeg to visit a school chum and to go in for winter sports and a round of parties is charming, fun-loving Betty Kennedy, post-deb daughter of the J. J. Kennedys.

To Visit Winnipeg

Betty will be the guest of Eleanor Breen, who has visited here Betty and Eleanor studied together at school in Lausanne.

The Herman Gross Scotts, of Sewickley, announce the marriage of their daughter, Mrs. Eleanor Scott Walker, to William Wood McCarthy, of Boston, son of the John McCarthys, of Chicago, which took place yesterday in the Arlington Street Church, Boston. The Rev. Dr. Samuel A. Elliott officiated.

Miss Stotler Married in Church

Mrs. Catherine Stuart Stotler, of Center street, Wilkinsburg, announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Margaret Hope Stotler, to Charles William Dressler, Jr., son of Mrs. Charles William Dressler, of Milton avenue, Swissvale.

The marriage was solemnized Thursday morning in the South Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, Wilkinsburg. Officiating was the Rev. Dr. James P. Hoffman.

After a motor trip Mr. and Mrs. Dressler, Jr., will make their home in Wilkinsburg.

Peace Council Holds Sessions In Y.M.C.A.

Today's sessions of the two-day conference planned by the Council for Peace and Social Action are being held in the Downtown Y. M. C. A., under the general title of "A Planned World Order." Speakers are Dr. Benjamin H. Williams, E. Kingman Eberhart, V. M. Samuels, a follower of Gandhi, and Frederick Libby and Miss Dorothy Detzer, the last two speaking tonight.

Miss Detzer, who arrived in town this morning, says in the solution of the problem of distribution lies the key to a future peace or war, prosperity or poverty. Life must be looked at as a whole and not in broken fragments, and there must be seen the direct connection between farmers and the tariff, workers and war debts, the kidnaping racketeer and the present economic system.

Cautious pacifism is not enough, Miss Detzer declared, adding that every tax payer needs to analyze government expenditure of his money. Especially is there needed an investigation of the munitions interests to determine to what extent these affect international policy.

Yesterday's sessions were addressed by Bishop Francis J. McConnell, Rabbi B. Benedict Glazer, Joseph A. Beck and Edgar J. Kaufmann.

Dr. M. C. Elmer will speak and Miss Carolyn Hilmer will sing Monday at the meeting of the Edgewood Col. Club in the Edgewood Club. Gladys Schade Klaber will accompany Miss Hilmer. Mrs. A. L. Petty heads the hostesses.

* * *

The Homewood Woman's Club will meet in the Homewood Carnegie Library Monday with Miss Laura Selkregg, leader for the day, taking the place of Mrs. Hugh Smith, who is ill.

The speaker is W. L. Christon who will have as his subject "World Peace."

Mrs. D. Edwin Miller, chairman of scholarships in the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women, will be interviewed by Mrs. Joseph H. Grandey, district president of the Pennsylvania Congress of Parent and Teachers, during the P. T. A. radio period Monday. At 2:30 [illegible] will take [illegible] on "Social Work in High School Scholarships Lift the Load."

UNUSUAL FABRICS IN THE EVENING SCENE

By PRUNELLA WOOD

IT is always nice to know what Mme. Schiaparelli is up to, and the sketches here offered show three of her latest designs, dedicated to a winter of formal good times. As usual, this imaginative couturiere has used knitted stuffs to get her effects. Irish crochet, which until last year, when it appeared in a few spectator sports frocks and gilets of the dressier sort, has been reserved for lace edgings or baby caps, makes one of the new Schiaparelli mediums for evening gowns. Any woman with a knowing eye can see how stunning it will be over a Southern resort winter tan.

IT will be seen, too, that Madame has been faithful to her notion of the Chinese touch in costumes, as one of the models pictured uses a dragon motif on a Peiping red crepe scarf for accent. It is a dashing idea, very wearable, and distinctly not of the frantically Chinese influence which goes after the Oriental line more than it does the Oriental color.

EVERYBODY knows, however, that Schiaparelli takes her unusual fabrics and notions right into camp. Anything she uses is bent to a basic design which is feminine and well within the contemporary idea of what makes a woman chic and pretty. So we see that the sheathe line, the higher front neckline, and the tendency to have shoulders a bit covered are all preserved in the development of these late models.

Duchess Club Tea To Be Given for 'Prospects'

The Duchess Club season will open tomorrow afternoon when prospective members of the club will be entertained at a tea in the Library Building, Duquesne University.

Miss M. Gertrude Blanchard, dean of women at Duquesne, will speak and the address of welcome will be made by the president of the club, Miss Evelyn M. Tray.

The regular monthly meeting of the club will be held November 20.

Dr. Tedesche to Address Rodef Shalom Temple Sisterhood and Men

MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

When the Rev. Dr. Sidney Tedesche, of Union Temple, Brooklyn, N. Y., addresses a joint meeting of the Men's Society and the Rodef Shalom Temple Sisterhood on Monday night, he will discuss Hans Fallada's new book, "Little Man, What Now?"

This will be Dr. Tedesche's first visit to Pittsburgh, but one which is being anticipated because of his personality and his reputation as a brilliant orator. Dr. Tedesche was born in 1890 in Cincinnati where he received his public school education. He entered Hebrew Union College in 1905 and in 1913 was graduated both from it and from the University of Cincinnati.

His first pulpit was in Springfield, Ill., where he built a temple and was instrumental in organizing the Bureau of the Unemployed of the Associated Charities and the famous Wednesday Luncheon Club. He next went to Providence and from there to San Antonio where he did further outstanding civic and welfare work.

He helped organize the Associated Jewish Charities and established the Community Council, a clearing house for Jewish charity work. He was an officer of the Marne Class of the San Antonio Consistory, chairman of the Masonic Lecture Bureau of the Scottish Rite and chairman of the boys' work committee in the Rotary Club.

When he took charge of a congregation in New Haven he interested himself in the personal, religious and financial life of the students and inaugurated a scholarship fund in his congregation. Studying at Yale, he won his degree of Doctor of Philosophy.

He is a fellow of the National Council of Religion, a member of the American Oriental Society, the Society of Biblical Literature, the Semitic and Biblical Club of Yale and the Yale Oriental Society. He was the first rabbi ever invited to preach at a Sunday service in the historic Center Church.

He is author of "Prayers of the Apocrypha," "Jewish Champions of Religious Liberalism" and "I Esdras."

"Biography Goes Modern" is the subject of a talk that Mrs. Ross E. Taggart will give before the South Hills College Club on Tuesday evening in Dormont New Century Club.

The verse speaking choir from Pennsylvania College for Women will present a program directed by Miss Vanda Kerst.

A social event on the club program, is an evening bridge to be held in the New Century Club on Friday evening, with Mrs. R. H. Braun, Jr., and the social committee in charge of arrangements.

The subject for discussion at the Parent-Teacher Association meeting to be held in the West View Junior High School Monday evening will be "Spiritual Training." The speakers are the Rev. H. D. McCalmont, the Rev. L. P. Spoehr and the Rev. O. B. Emerson.

Voters' League Units List Meetings

The Twenty-sixth Ward League of Women Voters announces its November meeting for Tuesday in the American Legion Hall with Dr. Ralph Turner, University of Pittsburgh, as guest speaker. Dr. Turner's subject will be "The Need for Social Security." A playlet, "The Grand Slam," will be given by league members under the direction of Mrs. Howard Hinds.

The Dormont-Mt. Lebanon League meets Wednesday evening in the New Century Club. "Our Juvenile Court System" is to be the discussion subject with Judge Benjamin Lencher as guest speaker. A reading by Mrs. Charles Bowlus will be another program feature.

On the same day at 2 o'clock the Ben Avon League will meet in Miss Louise Knox's home, Brighton road, for a discussion of "Women in Industry." Mrs. Charles Arnold, chairman of the County League's women in industry committee, will be the speaker.

The second report tea for the membership drive now being conducted by the County League is scheduled to take place in the home of the chairman, Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, Shady avenue, on Friday.

The Twenty-seventh Ward League, meeting Monday in the home of Miss H. E. Paulin, Campus street, will also be addressed by Mrs. Arnold.

On the same day and at the same hour the Bellevue League meets in the local Y. M. C. A. Mrs. Stuart L. Henderson, chairman of the education committee of the state league, will speak on "Unemployed Teachers and the New Federal Schools."

Peace League Will Show Lang Chinese Exhibit

Miss Mary P. Lang's unusual Chinese exhibit will be shown at the Congress of Clubs under auspices of the Women's International League for Peace on Friday from 2 until 10 o'clock.

Paintings, ceramics, carvings and numerous curios will be on display. Others besides Miss Lang who will have articles in the exhibit are Mrs. Clarke M. Kefover, Mrs. D. A. Irwin, of Chefoo, China; Mrs. E. G. Lang and Mrs. Samuel E. Diescher.

Greensburg Girl And East End Man Marry

In the First Reformed Church of Greensburg at 11:30 o'clock this morning occurred the marriage of Miss Betty Feightner and Burkhart C. Nebo, Jr. Officiating was the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Lawrence E. Bair.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul H. Feightner, of Greensburg, and the bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Nebo, of Northumberland street, East End.

The bride wore midnight blue panne velvet with a black hat and corsage of orchids. Only the families were in attendance.

After a motor trip the junior Nebos will be at home in Dover Gables, South Negley avenue. The bride is a graduate of Goucher College and the bridegroom attended Washington and Jefferson College.

Mrs. Frank H. Teagle, of Cleveland, alumnae trustee of Smith College, will be guest of honor at a tea to be given by the Smith College Club of Pittsburgh, Monday, at the home of Miss Betty Bell, Devonshire street. Mrs. Teagle will bring news from the campus, having recently visited the college.

Gossipy Chat With Nancy Jane

At 2 o'clock the afternoon before her daughter Katharine's debut, Mrs. C. S. B. Ward had a last fitting of the black satin afternoon dress she was to wear at the debut.

At 5 o'clock, just three hours later, the designer telephoned her that the dress was burnt up! It was too late then to buy a ready-made for the luncheon, so Mrs. Ward wore a black moss crepe street dress, and most attractive she looked, too, and not at all upset!

The medical profession isn't the only one with a code of ethics. You know, of course, that you mustn't call in another doctor when you already have one engaged.

It seems that professional photographers have the same code, much to the embarrassment of a debutante's mother recently.

Two photographers arrived on the scene—both had asked to come to take pictures—and then the trouble began.

Finally, it was settled this way—the representative of the studio which had called first stayed to take the picture.

The most interesting person at Katharine Ward's debut luncheon yesterday wasn't a deb, in spite of the many charming ones there, but Mrs. W. Harry Brown.

Mrs. Brown, one of the most fascinating dowagers of Pittsburgh, if there are dowagers any more in this age in which everyone is young, is going to spend a winter at home for a change.

For many winters she's been a prominent hostess in London, Paris, Palm Beach and on the Riviera.

Did you notice Katharine Ward's bracelet and pin yesterday? They were of coral, carved exquisitely in a flower design. The pin fastened one shoulder of the gown. They're heirlooms.

Repentance Is Good but It Shouldn't Be Overdone

Remorse! How long should we keep it up?

When may we stop being sorry for the foolish past?

When have we a right to feel free and clean and proud again?

Or does that time never come? Must we go on being sorry—go on hating ourselves—forever?

Poor Joan's asking.

Dear Elsie:

I am not going to ask what you think of a girl like me, for I know your opinion will be the same as my own. But I've got to get this off my chest—to tell it to someone who may at least understand. But first I want you to know I am not looking for sympathy.

You see I've been so rotten—so thoroughly rotten — that everything is smashed, and now nothing seems worth while. Don't think I've just got to "cry on someone's shoulder." That's not so. I know darned well I deserve every rotten break I've got coming my way now.

It hasn't been just one man in my life. It has been several. But always, at the time, it seemed like love. Infatuation, I suppose. But here is the funny part of it. I know that I have been everything but decent, but under it all I don't feel "bad." And I am hoping always, for—I hardly know what.

And now I find myself in love—but differently in love, I know. Because this love doesn't drag me down. It makes me want to be different—somebody worth while.

But here is the irony. Where this fellow might once have loved me and respected me, I have destroyed my chances by being such an utter fool.

DARK FUTURE

And now—what is there? He works in the same office I do. I see him every day. And life for me is just purgatory—at 22. What will I make it at 40, with this beginning, if I ever reach that age? I don't know. I might leave town. I have wanted to. But there is my mother. I couldn't hurt her. She believes I'm good—that they don't come any better. That's funny—very. Only, what is there left now?

I see all the years stretched endlessly before — ever hating myself. A smile on my face. A knife in my heart. I have never poured out my heart before, as I am doing now.

I want to be somebody different, worthwhile, but what chance is there? I am so unhappy! Please help me. I can only call myself a forever repenting fool. What can I do? What do you think of me?

JOAN.

What do I think of you?

I think you're brave and sweet and clean and good and honest. That's what I think you are—now, Joan, dear. But you were so different once? Sure you were. We all were, once.

Once we were all stumbling babies. Then we were mischievous youngsters, and often the best of us—the most eager and brave and generous—were the worst youngsters. You, I think, were such a one.

REPENTED ENOUGH

Mind you, I'm not trying to laugh away all the cheapness and vulgarity—the things which you did, knowing they were wrong. But I do believe that the very warmth and courage in you, which now show out so plainly in your letter, misled you often then.

Once a kindly old woman said to an erring girl, "Don't give up hopes of yourself, lassie. The best soil grows the most weeds."

I was that girl, little Joan—and I've never forgotten those gentle, wise words. So I'm passing them on to you. Don't give up hopes of yourself, lassie. Your good soil grew weeds—

But now that you have learned how to end it, it can grow the loveliest flowers.

So stop weeping over the weeds of yesterday. Begin to glow over the flowers of today.

Repentance? You've done enough of that. It's over. Forget, now—and go on. You're as clean now as any woman in the whole wide world. You have as much chance to make good—if you'll just believe in your chance.

'ALWAYS IN SEASON'

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

You can't wear your hard straw hat when the wintry winds do blow; you can't fling out your sleeveless on the bed, make your first layer of clothes the sheerest of sheer; comb back the sunkist locks, get into the sleeveless and fare out to tennis when the soft snow flakes are driving through the blue air; you can't cinch on the board-like wool ski slacks, draw on the elbow-length mittens and plunge into a white world where your breath makes silvery clouds, when the poppies are in bloom; you can't serve brandy liquors with your fish and dainty new potatoes; brown nuts, cranberries and pumpkins stir no memories, appetites, or longing in the rare days of June; the little boy's baseball suit hides away in the highboy in November, and nobody but the unlucklies read a school-book in August.

But brides and weddings! Not to mention the groom. Though the world has come to think of "Bride" and "June" as close harmony, weddings are in season all the year round, just as there is no closed season on hunting for the great god Cupid. The bridal veil is just as misty and in fashion when the snow flakes fly as it is when the for-get-me-nots bloom. And IF not, then the bride is just as much so, for she can walk into the church in horizon-blue wool and fox furs and be just as happy a bride as if satin and lace and tulle clothed her romantic little heart. And the groom? He is just as scared and just as happy as if the spring blue bells ring at his wedding.

Brown autumn, green spring, lush summer, white winter, brides and love and young grooms teach the earth the lesson of youth and dreams and faith.

Gives to the tender and the good
A Paradise below."

NELL BRINKLEY.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Daughter-in-Law

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—Our son who is away from home, writes that he is engaged to a young lady whom I have never met. I feel that I should write to her or to her mother. Which would be correct, and please tell me what to write?

2—Should I invite her to visit us? I should very much like to know her.

MOTHER.

1—Yes, you should write both the young lady and her mother. This is one of the most charming kinds of letters to write, for in it you can reveal delightful things about yourself and about your wish to welcome this young lady into the family circle. It can be a most sweet and "motherly" letter, telling of your wish for the couple's happiness, of your love for your son, and your desire to meet her and to know her, and to offer her your love. Don't, of course, make your letter formal. It should be chatty, and it should say just what you would like to say if you were talking with her.

2—Yes, by all means, ask her to come to see you, whenever it is possible for her to do so. If distances mean that it would be possible for her to come for a week-end, for instance, write to her mother and to her and make a definite date for a week-end. This would be the most hospitable thing that you could do.

Sympathy Notes

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—I am a daily reader of your column and wish you would inform me as to the correct way to answer notes of sympathy one receives after losing a dear member of the family.

2—Should one answer the notes of sympathy received from different societies to which he belongs and how should the notes be worded? I am in doubt about answering these notes of sympathy received from missionary societies. F.

1—We should acknowledge every note of sympathy sent to us, every tribute of flowers, every kind of message of condolence by writing a note, a short, sincere note, of appreciation of the thoughtfulness. So nothing like this:

Dear [illegible],

You were most kind, most friendly, to send us such a loving letter, and we thank you deeply. And the beautiful flowers, too, brought us your sympathy and your understanding. I wish that we could tell you how much we appreciated both your message and your flowers.

Sincerely yours,

2—The letters of appreciation to the societies would be worded about the same, and the letter would be addressed to the secretary, or to the person who sent the letter or the flowers for the society.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Duplicate Tactics

Duplicate Bridge scored on the match-point basis requires tactics somewhat different from those used in Rubber Bridge, and one of the principal differences is that the standards for bidding are lower. Mr. Jimmy Carpenter, who was my husband's partner in a team-of-four championship event at a time when he knew little or nothing about Contract Bridge, evidently has developed considerable boldness in his bidding, as is shown by his tactics with the hand below, in which he was the holder of the South hand.

North, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

	♠ A K 9 ♡ J 4 2 ◇ A 7 5 3 ♣ 8 4 2
♠ Q J 10 7 6 2 ♡ Q 6 5 3 ◇ 8 ♣ Q 3	North West East South	♠ 8 ♡ A K 10 9 ◇ K Q 10 4 ♣ J 9 7 6
	♠ 5 4 3 ♡ 8 7 ◇ J 9 6 2 ♣ A K 10 5 Mr. Carpenter

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	Double (5)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—A bad Opening bid, vulnerable.

2—An equally bad Double. East can well afford to wait and see what will develop naturally on the hand.

3—South's bid is not good.

4—West has a six-card suit and he assumes that his partner is prepared for a spade response.

5—A very speculative Double, but, as I stated, the game was Duplicate and if the contract was defeated the Double might mean the difference between top and bottom score.

North's Opening lead was the club eight, and when South saw the Dummy with its massed strength in diamonds and hearts he felt certain that North must hold at least two top-card tricks in spades. He therefore chose as his return a small heart. This trick was won in Dummy and a trump returned. North won and led another heart, which West won with the Queen. He again led a spade, so North won his second trump trick and returned the third round of hearts, permitting South a ruff with his remaining trump. Thus North and South won three trump tricks, two clubs and one diamond, defeating the contract one trick.

The bidding of the hand, even from the standpoint of Duplicate, is, in my opinion, extremely bad. The defense is, however, extremely fine.

TODAY'S QUESTION

What is the penalty when the defending side revokes, but corrects said revoke immediately?

Answer—The Declarer has his choice of two penalties: he may either treat the card played in error as exposed or he may allow the offender to return the card to his hand but require him to play the highest or lowest card of the suit in which the revoke was made.

Veritzen Sends for Young Sweethearts

It seemed like an eternity, those moments while Lillian and I waited for Philip Veritzen's decision. Which would triumph within that complex personality—the memories of Noel's dead mother, patently, pleading for indulgence of her boy's romantic and idyllic secret plan for his honeymoon, or the great dramatic producer's own flamboyant scheme, as he had outlined it a few hours before to the secret dismay of Noel and Mary, though they had given it outward acquiescence?

When at last he spoke briskly, as if thrusting something behind him, there was no relief for our anxiety in his words.

"Are Noel and Mary near at hand?" he asked.

"I think they are in the library?" I answered a bit breathlessly.

"May I trouble you to ask them to come here?" he queried, but the words had all the effect of a command.

"Surely," I answered, and left the room at once, conscious of Lillian's gaze following me. I knew that she was as puzzled as I, and guessed that she shared my resentment against Philip Veritzen for his patently childish ruse of keeping us guessing as to his ultimate intention.

But my resentment did not slow my progress to the library. I felt as if my feet were indeed winged, as I rushed through the corridor and paused outside the half open door, calling softly, "Noel! Mary! I want you!"

There was a rustle within the dimly lit room, and then the two betrothed lovers appeared, Mary's curly hair a bit disarranged, the shoulder of Noel's coat bearing distinct traces of powder. But they minded me not a bit as they rushed out, Mary catching my right hand and Noel my left.

"What luck?" they whispered, as with one breath.

"I don't know yet," I told them, then outlined swiftly every word of the interview Lillian and I had just had with Philip Veritzen.

"I wanted you to know everything that had been said," I finished, in tones inaudible beyond the door. "Now, remember, he doesn't know that either of you ever raised a single objection to his plan, or voiced any desire for your own five days. So be careful what you say. But let him see that you do care tremendously for these five days of your own, although you must not hint at anything like an ultimatum. I do not like to raise your hopes unduly, but I do believe that he is considering seriously the changing of his plans. So be careful!"

"Indeed, we will," Mary said, and Noel added fervently, "We'll never let you down, Mrs. Graham."

"Don't let yourselves down," I told him, smiling, and then I looked quizzically at them.

"I would advise a lot of prinking before appearing before the august eyes of the father," I said, smiling.

"Oh!" Mary said, with a little squeal, and dashed for the hall mirror. There she ran a small comb through her curly hair and reduced it to order, while I took a handkerchief and dusted off the shoulder of Noel's coat.

"There! You'll both do, now," I said, as they followed me meekly into the living room, where Philip Veritzen and Lillian sat awaiting us.

From the intent absorption upon their faces I conjectured that no word had been spoken. Both of them looked up, almost as if startled, at our entrance, and Mr. Veritzen rose punctiliously, pulling out chairs for Mary and for me.

"Sit down," he said to Noel, indicating a chair opposite him, when he had seated us.

His son obeyed, and then there was silence while Philip Veritzen let his eyes rest alternately upon Noel and the boy's lovely betrothed.

I knew what he was doing, and would have liked to shake him soundly. With his keen sense of the theatrical, he was prolonging the suspense, getting the last touch of dramatic value out of a situation in which he was "playing God."

"Mrs. Graham tells me, Noel," he said, "that you already had planned for a five-day honeymoon when I broached my plan to you. She does not know what your plans are, but she believes that they mean a great deal to you and Mary. Is that true?"

The last three words were like the crack of a whip in their staccato utterance, and Noel started almost as if they had been an actual spur.

"Yes, father," he said, and his voice was low, almost hoarse. "Those plans do mean more than we can tell you, to Mary and to me; but if you really wish us to, father, we will give them up."

I choked back an audible gasp with difficulty. Did the boy mean it, or was he making an especially clever play?

His father looked at him steadily for a moment and then turned to Mary.

"Do you subscribe to that sentiment, too, Mary?" he asked.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

'Growing Pains' May Indicate Rheumatism

I am often asked whether there is any difference between "rheumatism" and "acute rheumatic fever." They are really the same. Most persons confuse the term rheumatism with muscular or joint pains, found in neuritis, neuralgia and other similar afflictions.

Dr. Copeland

Though tremendous strides have been made in the treatment and prevention of acute rheumatism, the cause of this baffling disease has never been discovered. It is probable that the affliction is the result of an infection by a germ. In certain cases a germ known as the "streptococcus rheumaticus" has been isolated. But it is not found in all cases. More evidence is needed to prove that this particular germ causes the disease.

As a rule the ailment afflicts young children, but it is frequently encountered in adults. It is one of the most common causes of heart disease. Rheumatic heart in children is one of the great problems now confronting public health officials. Too few persons realize the seriousness of this disease and its menace to future health and happiness.

Unfortunately, the disease is often overlooked in its early stages. At times it is regarded merely as the "growing pains" of children. To all mothers I would like to emphasize the fact that there is no such thing as pain due to growth. If a child complains persistently of pains in the legs, arms and shoulders, rheumatism should be suspected.

The positive diagnosis should be made by a physician, but the existence of the disease should always be suspected if the sufferer complains of pain in the joints. This is particularly true if the victim runs a high fever, sweats freely, has poor appetite and is extremely restless.

Once the diagnosis is made it is imperative that the victim remain in bed until the fever and other prominent symptoms disappear. Relief from pain is obtained by placing the afflicted joint or joints in a comfortable position and wrapping the limb in layers of cotton batting or flannel. At times a well-fitted, padded splint of wood or light plaster of paris bandage is beneficial.

I cannot over-emphasize the importance and necessity of prolonged rest in bed. This is especially important for young children and is at present our only method of guarding against involvement of the heart.

It is the belief of many doctors that acute rheumatic fever or rheumatism can be traced to a center of infection somewhere in the body. For this reason it is advisable that all infected and diseased tonsils, sinuses, teeth and other infected organs be given attention.

Daily Routine for the Baby

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

It is amazing how many mothers are taking advantage of the excellent publications on child care which are furnished by our government for very small sums, and in many cases freely.

It is also amazing that a great many mothers are ignorant of this storehouse of information. For this reason I like to mention, occasionally, one or more of the very helpful pamphlets that are put out for your use by the children's bureau.

I think one of the most practical innovations in this service to mothers and expectant mothers, is a group of cardboard charts called "Baby's Daily Time Card."

Maybe you modern young mothers know just how often a new baby should be fed, as opposed to how often the 6-month-old infant needs nourishment. Maybe you know when to give orange juice and cod liver oil. Perhaps you know all about baby's sleep periods, his exercise, his sun baths and so on. I'll admit that I didn't when my baby first came.

First chart tells you hour by hour what baby's routine should be for the first five months. The second outlines his routine while he is from five to six months old. The charts take baby on up to the time when he has two candles on his birthday cake.

On the back of each card are excellent suggestions on diet, sleep, exercise, health habits, weaning, etc.

But the thing that appeals to me as being so very practical is that ... time is given for everything from feeding to bathing, playing, napping, etc.

I don't say that any mother can follow this timing to the exact minute, but it serves as an excellent skeleton upon which to build a good regime, one which will make for a happy mother and happy baby.

The cards may be procured by writing the United States Department of Labor, Washington, D. C., Children's Bureau, and asking for Chart No. 14.

Household Hints

To keep cheese fresh wrap it loosely in a piece of muslin dipped in vinegar. So long as the muslin is kept slightly damp the cheese will neither go dry nor mouldy, also the flavor seems to be greatly improved.

Water spots on a fine felt hat can be removed by rubbing gently with fine sandpaper, employing a circular motion in the process. You will find this far better than trying to remove them with a cleaner.

LAURA WHEELER DESIGNS

Make These Distinctive Gifts

The wise needlewoman knows that Xmas gifts can never be started too early. This collection of gifts, all of which have some simple floral motif in embroidery, offers a variety of unusual suggestions that will meet the wishes of many people. The garden book—a simple way of storing seeds until spring—will meet the practical gardener's approval and is decorated in tiny sprays of wool flowers. These can also be used on a tray cloth and napkins. The square bag, too, can serve the gardener when made of oilcloth or glazed chintz, or will do equally well as a work bag; the four small pockets hold accessories in either case. The work bag, with a gay mass of flowers at the bottom and bright spools of thread practically fastened to the outside, is a most effective gift. The motif also lends itself to other uses.

Pattern 572 comes to you with a transfer pattern of nine sprays 1x1½ inches, 5 sprays ½ inch in diameter, four 4-inch corners and six 4x5½-inch motifs; complete directions for making the articles shown and color suggestions.

Send 10c for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

RAIL MERGER PLAN EXPERTS STOP HERE

A group of eastern railroad executives studying the details of the Prince plan of railroad consolidation for Federal Coordinator Joseph B. Eastman stopped for a few hours in their private car at Pennsylvania station early today.

They made no inspection of the Pittsburgh terminals, which, according to the Prince plan, are due for drastic consolidations and abandonment of miles of line. One member of the party said:

"We are all thoroughly familiar with the railroad situation in Pittsburgh."

In his opinion the Prince plan has not gotten past the stage of study. The group had this week completed an inspection of the terminals at Buffalo, Detroit, Toledo, Chicago, St. Louis, Louisville, Cincinnati and Indianapolis.

On the car were D. F. Stevens, of the Baltimore and Ohio; J. E. Davenport, of the New York Central; J. M. Symes, of the Pennsylvania Railroad; S. E. Miller, of the Boston and Maine, and L. L. Levison, secretary. The services of all have been loaned by their roads to the federal government.

Harlan J. German, of the Montour Railroad, also an assistant to Eastman, is in Pittsburgh on a visit.

BANNISTER TAGS MARY M'CORMIC

International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 11.—"A man doesn't give his identification tag to a woman unless—"

Smilingly Mary McCormic, grand opera star, replied to questioners who sought to learn, when she stepped from a New York airplane yesterday, whether she was engaged to marry Harry Bannister, formerly the husband of Ann Harding, film star.

Miss McCormic displayed a linked bracelet, one segment of which contained Bannister's flying wings. His name was stamped on the under side.

She said she was "simply giddy" over Bannister, but she refused to deny or affirm whether they were engaged. She continued:

"Take it from me, he's the greatest man in the world. The minute I get this divorce business settled here I'm going back East to see him just as quckily as a plane will take me."

(Miss McCormic is suing Prince Serge Mdivani.)

PARK ENFORCES LIQUOR LAWS

Although the liquor laws of the land have to all intents been repealed, they are still on the books until December 5, or thereabouts avers District Attorney Andrew T. Park.

Accordingly he ordered county detectives out yesterday on the hunt of alleged violators. At 1217 Pennsylvania avenue detectives reported seizing a quantity of whisky and a slot machine and the arrest of Andrew Daley, the alleged proprietor.

In another raid Lawrence Schratz, alleged steward of the Hanover Beneficial Association at 4760 Liberty avenue, was arrested detectives said, and moonshine whisky and slot machines seized.

N. Y. to Imbibe In Any Posture Except Erect

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER-

State liquor codes fix all drinking details but the location of your hat in a barroom fight.

We advise the timid to stay indoors until this repeal thing blows over.

The old corner saloon has gone again. It leaves every day on schedule like the Santa Fe Limited.

New York State will not permit its citizens to drink standing up. The correct posture for a gentleman is on the back of his neck.

If we knew there was going to be all this commotion we would have sailed along under the old rules. Everything worked nicely for 13 years. And that's the longest we ever lasted in an elimination tournament.

Nobody has explained the legal status of the conscientious dry, who gets it on medical prescription, and takes it by mistake in the dark.

Presence Of Spy Known

(To be published from Cosmopolitan Magazine and soon to appear on the screen as a Cosmopolitan production made for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and starring Marion Davies.)

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

"I did kiss you," Gailliard said, reddening, "but I had a reason."

"What reason, suh?" Lucille kept on busily scrubbing and rinsing.

"Well, I wanted to look at your fingernails — for one thing. And it's damned lucky for you they passed inspection."

She laughed. "Yuh 'spicioned I wuz a white gal come a-spyin', Cap'n Gailliard, suh?"

"I wanted to be sure," Gailliard admitted sulkily.

"Tha's the onliest reason why you kiss me?"

"And I wanted to take a good look at that little bridge of cartilage which divides your nostrils underneath, Lucille."

"Wha's that, suh?" she asked, opening her dark-fringed eyes.

"Usually a certain test. If it's wide and thick its African, yours isn't. And if it hadn't been for your nails I'd have arrested you."

"Lan' sakes, why?" demanded the girl, laughing and wide-eyed.

"Quadroon, or octoroon, or whatever you are Lucille, there's enough white in you to give you a white girl's nose. And only for the certain sign on your fingernails——"

She lifted her slim, wet fingers and looked at the exquisitely formed nails. "If I wuz white," she said, "maybe yuh'd come a-co'tin me. Cap'n Gailliard, suh?"

"Certainly," he said dryly; "I always court every pretty girl I see."

"Sorry I isn't white," she said with an enchanting smile over one bare shoulder, "but that's how things is in this hyar world o' sin, Cap'n Gailliard, suh. Yuh oughta know it, too, kaze I reckon yuh is a sinner."

"You think I am, Lucille?"

"Yes, suh. Mischief in yuh eyes."

"In yours, too."

They instantly opened wide again, like dark-fringed orchids, and he felt the blood stir in his face and heart.

Then he set his jaw and scowled at her. "Your former friend, Pauline Cushman, the Yankee spy, got away in the excitement when the Yankee cavalry attacked last week," he said. "I am wondering where she got a knife to slit the provost-guard tent."

"Lan' sakes," said the girl, "did she-all do that?"

Meant to Hang Girl

"That's what she did," he said grimly; "and now she's gone to the Yankees with her budget of news. It's lucky for you that you told the truth about your relations with her to the gentlemen of the military court." He gave her a hard look, and it hurt him, somehow, to do it. "Until I'd taken a look at your fingernails," he continued, "I was pretty sure you were one of their actress spies. That's what Mr. Chancellor thought, too."

"If I wuz a Yankee spy would yuh-all hang me, Cap'n Gailliard, suh?" she giggled.

"Hang a white lady!"

"Why not? She attempted to send General Jeb Stuart and two thousand poor boys to death. Do you suppose the Confederate government can afford to take a chance with such a woman?"

"No, suh." She sighed. "I reckon," she added sadly, "that the gin'ral ain't a-ridin' to Pennsylvania no mo'. Oh, lawsy me! I wuz a hopin' an' prayin' how he fix up to ketch old Lincoln in Washington. An' that's whut I wuz a-wishin' an' a-prayin' 'long o' washin' this hyar chemise fo' Miss Belle when yuh come a-whistlin', suh."

"Don't worry, Lucille," he said, smiling at her fervor.

"No, suh. But I wuz a wonderin' how come Gin'ral Jeb Stuart send me down hyar a-washin' fo' lil Miss Boyd? He say how he like how I wash an' iron. So I wuz a-puzzlin' an' a wonderin', an' I kindo figered but he done send me away kaze he gwine ride to Chambersburg——"

"Lucille," interrupted the young man sharply, "if you don't learn to mind your own business and to hold your tongue, your career as a laundress in this army will end!"

"Suh?" she asked blankly.

"I mean it. Stop trying to puzzle out what General Stuart is going to do! I told you a week ago to mind your own business and control your curiosity. If you don't, you'll be sent out of camp as a common nuisance."

The girl seemed scared. "But Yaller Bob told me," she whimpered.

"Told you what?"

Lucille Warned

"How Gin'ral Jeb Stuart is a-fixin' to take him an' Joe Sweeney 'long o' Major Pelham an' de hoss guns, kaze de gin'ral reckon he can't get along nohow wifout Yaller Bob."

"That damned yellow fellow is too biggity!" said Gailliard angrily. "I'm going to tell general how he brags and gossips. If any Yankee spy gets here and listens around the cook tent, he'll learn enough to destroy this army!"

"If that's so, then there won't be any. And listen to me, Lucille. If you hear any such gossip you come to my tent and tell me and I'll turn any blabbing Negro or soldier over to the provost marshal! And if you hear of, or happen to see, any man or woman you don't know prowling around the cook tent or the laundry tent, come instantly and let me know. Or tell Mr. Chancellor. Do you understand?"

"Yes, suh."

"Very well then. Be a good girl; do your washing and mind your own business. And don't go traipsing around with young men, white or black."

"Lawsy me," said the girl, "I does love to laugh an' carry on, suh."

"I know you do. And you'd better not. You said once that you liked to be kissed, too."

She laughed.

"Do you?"

"Yes, suh. Don' you?"

"No," said he; "it's damn foolishness." He walked on abruptly toward the Boyd house. He was no longer whistling and there had come into his flushed features a strange, strained look.

Beautiful Colleague

When he entered the gateway and approached the rose-smothered veranda, through blossoming sprays he saw a slight figure seated in a rocking chair, dressed in a cool pink muslin. Braids of dark hair shaded clear, pale cheeks and delicate brows, from under which a pair of brilliant eyes were observing him.

La Belle Rebelle! Miss Boyd. Yesterday a schoolgirl, not long out of Mr. Staley's Washington College—a graduate at 16. And today the most celebrated agent in the Confederate secret service. Now she had returned to her Virginia home from a term in the Old Capitol Prison. She had been sent out of the Union lines with the warning that she would hang if she ever came back.

Capt. Gailliard swept the grass with his hat in a profound bow and Belle Boyd rose and swept the veranda with a graceful curtsy. At her invitation he came up and reseated her with a grand air, and then too' a chair himself.

Was Miss Belle in health? She was. And he? In perfect health—with deep gratitude for her polite inquiry.

"Any news, Miss Belle?"

"That new laundress of ours is just a giddy little thing with no harm in her. Captain Gailliard. All she thinks of is to flirt with anybody, white or black."

"She gossips."

"All Negroes do. You know that."

"But she's always talking about Pennsylvania," he said irritably.

"Everybody knows that Jeb Stuart is going," said the girl quietly. "Every cavalryman, every camp follower, every Negro knows. Joe Sweeny's made up a tune about it for his banjo."

"That's terrible," murmured Gailliard.

The Spy System

"It can't be helped," said Miss Boyd, coolly. "It always is the same. No secret remains a secret long inside our lines. And yet, no really vital secret of ours ever leaks out into the Yankee lines. Do you realize that?"

"Their spies carry out information to McClellan, don't they?"

"They do. Always erroneous information so far. Don't you know, captain, that we never have been surprised in any major engagement? But they have been."

"That is true, ma'am," he admitted.

"Let me tell you what I believe is the trouble with the Yankee spy system. They have a good secret service organization; their operators get into our lines, and couriers carry news back to McClellan. And always the news is wrong. And that is because their spies are not trained to estimate numbers. They send back exaggerated estimates; their Major Allen reports these figures to McClellan. They petrify him and he demands more troops. And that is why we beat them in battle after battle, and continue to hold our lines with less than one-third the number of troops that they have, and less than a quarter of the number they believe we possess."

The two young people looked at each other for the moment then laughed gayly.

"My goodness," she said, "how stupid they are! All the time I was in prison I kept on sending information into our lines. Under their blue Yankee noses!"

They went into fits of laughter again. At last, and with some soberness:

"Miss Belle," said Gailliard "Mr. Gaston telegraphs us that another Yankee spy is inside our lines somewhere."

"So I hear," said the girl, becoming serious in her turn.

"Somehow or other Gaston has learned that this spy has been here some time, and is known as Number Thirteen in the Federal secret service."

"Our people hanged a spy whose number was thirteen," said the girl.

Gail Loveless, just 20, had had thorough training as a character actress under the tutelage of her friend and fellow-artist of the stage, Pauline Cushman. Miss Cushman had served as a spy for the Union Army. Now it was necessary for her to go again into the Confederate lines at Martinsburg, Va. Gen. J. E. B. Stuart needed watching. It was feared he intended to lead his raiders into Pennsylvania on a devastating raid.

Miss Cushman asked if she might take Gail Loveless with her. Pinkerton, head of the Federal Secret Service, and his aide, Col. Sharpe, seeing the young girl impersonate an octoroon, were convinced of her ability to fool the Southerners. They said she might go and assigned to her, as an agent of the Secret Service, the number 13, which had been borne by another spy, recently captured by the Southern Army and hanged.

A few days later Gail Loveless, as Lucille Lyndon, "yaller gal" laundress, had the good luck to be assigned to the headquarters of Gen. Stuart himself. And there, while she washed a shirt in a swift little river, came Capt. Jack Gailliard, foremost of Gen Stuart's spies. He kissed her and was ashamed of the thrill it gave him. Shortly afterward Pauline Cushman was arrested as a spy. Capt. Gailliard warns "Lucille" about running around with the soldiers.

CONTEST BRINGS OUT WEEK-END MENU HINTS

Favorite Recipes Of Readers Give Others Ideas

Week-ends are always a good time to have meals just a bit more festive than usual. Prudence Penny believes, so today she supplies her readers with recipes that will make delightful, not too expensive, Sunday dishes.

Week days, most families rush through rather sketchy breakfasts. On Sundays, with everyone having plenty of time, breakfast can be much more substantial. A pile of the prize-winning buckwheat cakes, for instance, would be just the thing to prepare for a household of individuals with healthy appetites.

Then, too, on Saturday make some sugar cookies and Minniken jelly roll, for you'll always be popular if you have a little something sweet on hand for both children and grown-ups.

Prepared in a few minutes, yet adding so much to your dinner, is the California fruit cocktail, which really is quite inexpensive.

There are many other recipes in the list that you will want to use; recipes that have a practical appeal. Cut them out, as thousands of other women are doing, paste them in your scrapbook, or put them in your recipe index, and you'll be prepared for all future menu problems.

Remember, that every day Prudence Penny awards 11 prizes, one $5 prize and 10 $1 prizes, so send in your favorites in care of Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, to take part in the daily competition.

FIVE DOLLAR PRIZE WINNER

MRS. CHARLES H. BLAIR,
301 Marguerite ave., Wilmerding.

THOUSAND ISLAND SALAD DRESSING

Two cups mayonaise.
One cup chili sauce.
Two tablespoonfuls chives or green onion.
One tablespoonful finely chopped parsley.
One teaspoonful of worcestershire sauce.
One-eighth teaspoonful paprika.
Two hard-boiled eggs.
Grind eggs, peppers and green onion and mix with chili sauce. Drain mixture a little to remove excess juice. Add mayonaise, paprika, parsley and worcessershire sauce. Put into jar and place in refrigerator. This dressing will keep several days.

TEN $1 PRIZE WINNERS

MRS. C. L. LIVINGSTON,
423 Lange avenue, Clairton.
SPICED CRANBERRY ICE

One quart cranberries.
Two cups water.
Two cups sugar.
One-half cup lemon juice.
One-eighth teaspoon powdered cinnamon.
Cook cranberries in water until soft. Press through a fine strainer. Add sugar to pulp, bring to boiling point, cool and add lemon juice and powdered cinnamon. Freeze, using part salt to five parts ice. Turn crank of freezer for 10 minutes. Remove paddle and pack.

MRS. WILLIAM E. THOMAS,
Clymer, Indiana County.
SUGAR COOKIES

One and one-half cups granulated sugar.
One cup butter or butter substitute.
One-half cup buttermilk in which one half teaspoon soda has been dissolved.
Two eggs.
One teaspoon vanilla or one teaspoon ground nutmeg.
One teaspoon baking powder.
One-half teaspoon salt.
Three cups flours.
Sift flour, baking powder and salt three times. Cream sugar and butter. Add eggs well beaten with flavoring. Next buttermilk and soda. Lastly, dry ingredients and enough more flour to make a soft dough, the softer the dough, the better the cookies. Roll out on baking board about one-eighth inch thick, sprinkle with sugar, cut and bake in hot oven. Makes two dozen large or three dozen small cookies. Cookies may be varied in many ways. Sometimes I chop one cup raisins and add to dough mixture before rolling. Sometimes I put a large raisin or half walnut on top. But I always sprinkle the sugar over the rolled-out dough no matter which way I prepare them.

MRS. JOHN R. M'GINN,
Harmony, R. D. 1—Box 40.
CALIFORNIA FRUIT COCKTAIL

Three oranges.
Three grapefurits.
One cup grapes.
Two tablespoons lemon juice.
Six tablespoons powdered sugar.
One small bottle maraschino cherries.
Pare oranges and lemons and remove sections free from membrane. Seed grapes. Combine ingredients and serve very cold in glass cocktail dishes or in baskets made from the grapefruit or orange shells. Pineapple may be substituted for the grapes.

MRS. MARGARET POLENS,
7268 Travella blvd., East Liberty.
TOAD IN THE HOLE

One and one-half pounds lean steak.
One lamb's kidney.
One level teaspoon salt.
One-half level teaspoon pepper.
One level teaspoon baking powder.
Four level tablespoons flour.
Two eggs.
Two cupfuls milk.
Cut steak and kidney into small pieces and put them into a greased fireproof dish, seasoning them with salt and pepper to taste. Sift flour and baking powder and pinch of salt, add eggs, well beaten, and beat for five minutes. Add gradually milk and stir well and pour over steak. Bake in moderate oven for one and one-half hours and serve hot. The remains of rare beef may be substituted for the steak, and chopped onions to taste added.

H. H. BAIRD,
Shields.
BUCKWHEAT CAKES

One quart hot water.
One tablespoon sugar.
Three cups buckwheat flour.
One tablespoon melted shortening.
One and one-half teaspoons salt.
One-quarter cup cornmeal.
One-quarter cup wheat flour.
One-half cake yeast.
Add sugar, salt and shortening to hot water. Beat in the buckwheat, cornmeal and white flour. Now add enough more buckwheat flour to make the desired consistency. When luke warm add yeast dissolved in one-quarter cup lukewarm water. Cover well and let rise in a moderately warm place over night. Just before baking gently stir in one-quarter teaspoon soda dissolved in one-quarter cup warm water. Save one cup or more to start next baking.

MRS. R. E. GRIFFIN,
540 Hawkins ave., N. Braddock.
TASTY DISH FOR LUNCH

One medium-sized egg plant.
One and one-half tablespoons ketchup.
One small onion.
One teaspoon baking powder.
One tablespoon flour.
A pinch of salt and pepper.
Grate egg plant and onion. Mix in ketchup, baking powder, flour, salt and pepper. Then make in round cakes and fry in frying.

MRS. J. H. ASTHALTER,
133 Latham street.
MINIKIN JELLY ROLL

Three-fourths cup sifted cake flour.
Three-fourth teaspoonful baking powder.
One-fourth teaspoonful salt.
Four eggs.
Three-fourths cup sifted sugar.
One teaspoonful vanilla.
One cup of red currant jelly.
Sift flour once and measure. Combine baking powder, salt and eggs in bowl. Place over smaller bowl of hot water and beat with rotary beater, adding sugar gradually until mixture becomes thick and light colored. Remove from hot water. Fold in flour and vanilla. Pour into two greased pans, 15x10 inches, lined with greased paper. Bake (400 degrees F.) 10 minutes.
Quickly cut off crisp edges of cake. Turn from pans at once onto cloth covered with powdered sugar. Remove paper. Cut each cake into six pieces of equal size, spread with jelly and roll. Wrap in cloth and cool on rack. Before serving decorated rolls with rosettes or borders of sweetened whipped cream forced through pastry tube. Makes 12 rolls.

MRS. OSCAR SOLODAR,
Potomac and Broadway, Dormont.
CREAM OF CELERY SOUP

Two-thirds cup celery, cut fine.
Two and one-half cups milk.
One and one-half cups water.
Four tablespoons butter.
Six tablespoons flour.
Two teaspoons salt.
One-quarter teaspoon paprika.
One teaspoon chopped parsley.
Two tablespoons whipped cream.
Wash celery thoroughly. Cut in small pieces, add the small leaves and water. Simmer 35 minutes. Strain through course strainer, rubbing all pulp through. Melt butter, add flour, salt and paprika. Add milk and cook two minutes, stirring to prevent scorching. Add the celery stock and the pulp. Cook one minute. Fill bouillon cups three-fourths full. Add two pinches of parsley and one teaspoon of cream to each serving.

MRS. W. J. EDMONDS,
151 Franklin avenue, Vandergrift.
SCOTCH BANNOCK

Mix a cupful of oatmeal with the same quantity of flour. Add one-quarter of a pound of butter with one-half teaspoonful of cream, add a teaspoonful of yeast and one egg. Mix with the flour and add one-quarter of a pound of caster sugar, set the dough to rise. Make into about twenty rough-looking buns, strew with carraway comfits and bake in quick oven.

MRS. EVA L. SANGREE,
213 Jillson avenue.
BAKED POTATOES STUFFED WITH HAM

Four large Irish potatoes.
Milk.
Two tablespoons butter.
One cup chopped cooked cheese.
Three tablespoons grated cheese.
Bake the potatoes until soft. Cut a slice from end of each and scoop out the pulp without breaking the shell. Put the potato through the ricer, add butter and enough milk to make of the consistency of mashed potatoes. Add chopped cooked ham, season with salt and pepper and refill the potato shells with the mixture, piling it up lightly. Brush with melted butter, sprinkle with grated cheese and brown lightly in a hot oven. Serves four. Served with head lettuce with French dressing, it is perfect for lunch.

Jury, Told Trial Cost, Gives Delayed Verdict

After being out all night Thursday, the jury trying the case of William B. Haid against Allegheny County for damages for the taking of his property was reinstructed by Judge Frank P. Patterson and late yesterday returned a verdict of $5,500 in Haid's favor.

Haid, who has property on the northern edge of Perrysville, was awarded $6,800 by the viewers. The road was straightened at the point, going between two houses owned by Haid and leaving one 14 feet in the air. The county refused to pay the viewers' award and took an appeal. In reinstructing the jury Judge Patterson said:

"If there is no great difference among you in what the damages should be, you should agree. It costs the county money to try cases and if we have to retry this one the expenses will be saddled on the taxpayers. This should be considered by you."

Two hours later they returned with the verdict.

International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 11. Claire Windsor, dazzling blonde movie star, was happy today over a court decision that set aside a $75,000 verdict Mrs. Marian Read, Oakland socialite, had obtained in an alienation of affections suit.

Superior Judge Joseph P. Sproul granted Miss Windsor a new trial on the ground that the judgment awarded Mrs. Read against Miss Windsor for asserted theft of the love of Mrs. Read's husband, Alfred C. Read, Jr., San Francisco broker, boxer and gay lothario, was "excessive and unreasonable."

The $75,000 award was made by a jury several weeks ago following a trial during which Miss Windsor testified that when she met Read she was led at first to understand that he was a single man, and that later he had told her he was married but planned a divorce.

She admitted she had met Read under romantic circumstances on a train going to New York.

Judge Sproul in his decision said:

"The courts have often expressed a reluctance to reduce even excessive verdicts in actions of alienation of affections because of the lack of rational basis upon which to fix the proper amount.

"But the same reason does not apply to the granting of a new trial where the verdict is palpably unreasonable. And particularly in this case, where new evidence has been discovered as shown by the affidavits on file herein, among which one relates that Read obtained approximately $10,000 from Claire Windsor to invest in a business project, and it further appears from said affidavit that plaintiff's former husband knew he could obtain more money from defendant Windsor if needed."

4 TEAMS LEFT IN BRIDGE TILT

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP)—The field was wide open today as four surviving teams entered the semi-final knockout round of the Vanderbilt Cup contract bridge team-of-four championships.

On the basis of their showing, the ladies have whatever shade of difference may exist between the survivors. They won to the semi-finals by superlative bridge, showing under with 4,480 points the Atlanta, Ga., foursome which had earned itself a place in the sun by toppling the defending champions.

At least two supposedly "invincible" combinations were out of the running.

The Culbertsonian foursome, Mr. and Mrs. Ely Culbertson, Theodore Lightner and Albert H. Morehead, bowed to Bernard Cone, Leo Bachrach, H. S. Frankenheimer and Ira Strasser by 1,750 points. A narrower margin of 730 points separated Oswald Jacoby, David Burnstine, Michael T. Gottlieb and Howard Schenken from their victors, Frank Rendon, Benjamin Feuer, Sidney Rusinow and Phil Abramsohn. Just the same, they were out.

JOAN, FRANCHOT LEAVE FOR N. Y.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Leaving here last night by train for New York, Joan Crawford forced Franchot Tone to face a battery of cameras and then said, "He's sweet and I adore him," but declared they were not "engaged."

The couple said the trip would be only a short vacation in the East.

Miss Crawford stated emphatically they were not engaged and, referring to her divorce from Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., explained:

"I'm not a free woman until next April and I really can't know how I'll feel about anyone by then."

Tone said he had intended to fly east "but when I heard Miss Crawford was going, I changed my plans. It is worth three or four days' loss of time just to be with her."

Bogus Bills Trap Hollidaysburg Man

ALTOONA, Pa., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Charged with possessing counterfeit $20 bills, Orville Lingafelt, of Hollidaysburg, is held in $2,000 bail.

He was given a hearing yesterday by United States Commissioner Walter Bartram after secret service agents arrested him.

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Grid Coaches Alter Views.•Tartans Meet Iron Man. Oppose Rule Once Favored. Mack Policy Questioned. Kabealo's Great Kicking. Only Winning Club Draws.

RIGHT MOVE TO RESTORE RUN ON FUMBLE

It took them almost five seasons to swing around, but in advocating the repeal of the rule that prohibits a player on the defensive team from running with a ball fumbled by the side which put it in play, Reggie Root and Adam Walsh, of Yale, Lou Little, of Columbia, and other college coaches are admitting that the majority of football fans and critics had the right slant in opposing the regulation when it was adopted for the campaign of 1929. At the time of enactment, most followers of the game viewed the rule as a wrong step, but big-time mentors whose teams had lost games through fumbles that were turned into touchdowns by opponents insisted the loss of the ball was a sufficient price to pay for a fumble.

Reggie Root

Some of those coaches now are arguing the opposite way, and the fact that a questionnaire on the point has been sent out indicates a movement is definitely under way to restore the old order of things that permitted a player to run with a ball fumbled by an offensive opponent. Which will be as it should be. The present rule, making the ball dead at point of recovery, gives too much protection to bad football. A team should have to pay for its errors if opponents are able to take advantage of them.

LIKE HALTING BASERUNNERS ON ERRORS

It would be no more absurd if a rule were to be adopted in baseball prohibiting baserunners from advancing on muffs, fumbles or wild throws by the club in the field. The present no-running-on-a-fumble rule slows up a football game, and takes away uncertainty and thrills.

Permitting a player again to run with a recovered fumble will make games more even by giving the weaker team a better chance; will help the game by increasing the uncertainty, and will keep the spectators in their seats until the finish by reason of the possibility that a sudden long run for a touchdown on a fumble may provide a late thrill and perhaps change the outcome of the contest.

YOUNGSTOWN SOPH RATED NEXT TO HARLEY

A bright spot in the Ohio State football picture is John (Kick) Kabealo, of Youngstown, O., who, though playing only his first year on the varsity eleven, has sprung into prominence in Big Ten circles through his remarkable kicking. In one game, besides shining on the defense by intercepting two forward passes, he averaged 41 yards in 16 punts. He has passed John Regeczi, of Michigan, and Ollie Olson, of Northwestern, for Conference punting honors.

Chick Harley

The young sophomore, who won 13 letters while attending high school in Youngstown, and who has a brother, George, on the Ohio State squad, is rated in Columbus as the most brilliant kicker the Buckeyes have had since the days of Chick Harley. And to be mentioned in the same breath with the immortal Harley is the ultimate in praise around Ohio State. Chick's playing years represented the peak of the Scarlet and Gray in football under Coach Wilce. Using the short punt formation, to which they have gone back this year with Kabealo, the Buckeyes carved history in the Big Ten. For three seasons, Harley, all-America halfback in 1919, dominated Western Conference football and brought two Conference championships to Ohio State, missing a third by an eyelash when a placement kick for a field goal by Bob Fletcher, of Illinois, beat him in the final seconds of a thrilling struggle, 9 to 7.

STAR LINEMAN AMONG TECH'S FOES TODAY

In the game at East Lansing today, Carnegie Tech gridders meet up with an exceptional lineman in the person of Arthur Buss, Michigan State tackle, 6 feet 1 inch, and 211 pounds of muscle, speed, co-ordination and youthful enthusiasm.

For three years the mainstay of the Spartan line, Buss is Michigan State's iron man. Up to today he played 1,201 minutes out of a possible total of 1,380 minutes during his three-year career at East Lansing. During the present season he missed only nine minutes in six games, playing 351 minutes out of a possible total of 360.

WEAK CLUBS WON'T DRAW SUNDAY CROWDS

A surprising view of the new Sunday baseball situation in Pennsylvania on the part of Connie Mack is reported from Philadelphia. One of Mack's close friends says the story that Connie, to get out of the red, would sell Lefty Grove, Mickey Cochrane, George Earnshaw and Max Bishop only in the event the A's could not play at home on Sundays in 1934, was all wrong, and that the converse is true. The friend asserts that Mack will be more willing to sell his stars now that he CAN have Sunday games at home, in the belief that no ball player except Babe Ruth ever drew extra dollars at the gate and that the fans will flock to Shibe Park on Sunday afternoons just to see a ball game, not to see Grove, or Cochrane, or the others.

Connie Mack

Connie is said to figure that the players named are on the downgrade, and that if he can get $100,000 to $150,000 for them now, before they lose their selling value, he will have just so much velvet and the A's will draw the same big Sunday crowds anyhow. Baseball men find it hard to believe that Mack has taken any such attitude. And if he has, he is in for a rude awakening. Individual stars in themselves may not attract the fans, but it takes individual stars to make up a winning ball club, and a winning club is the only thing that will draw the crowds regularly at home on Sundays or any other days. And that applies also to the 77 games on the road.

Mountaineers Clash With Wisconsin

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 11.—(AP)—The University of West Virginia and Wisconsin clash today in their first gridiron meeting.

YALE VETERAN DIES

NEW YORK, Nov. 11. (AP.) Burr Clark Chamberlin, an all-America tackle at Yale of the "Guards Back," bone-crushing era of football, died yesterday at his home in Bronxville of a heart ailment at the age of 56.

St. Vincent Beats New River, 25 to 0

LATROBE, Nov. 11.—St. Vincent College earned a decisive victory over New River College, of Montgomery, W. Va., yesterday on Bearcat Field. The score was 25 to 0.

The home eleven scored two touchdowns in the first half to gain a big advantage, and they added two more in the final quarter to clinch the affair.

The feature of the game was a 69-yard run by Walaitua, a substitute halfback of St. Vincent.

EAST LANSING, Mich., Nov. 11.—The first football clash between the Spartans of Michigan State and the Tartans of Carnegie Tech was on the card for local gridiron fans here today. The fact that the visitors were the first team to defeat Notre Dame this year, and their unorthodox wide-open game aroused considerable interest in today's battle, and the Michigan State stadium was expected to be filled for the encounter between the charges of Charley Bachman and Howard Harpster.

Even money is being wagered on the game, for if ever two teams went into a game evenly matched, they are today's pair. Each has been beaten once, but it has taken a high-ranking Western Conference team to turn the tide against both. Michigan State's only defeat was a 20-to-6 setback at the hands of Michigan in an early-season game. Carnegie maintained a perfect slate until last Saturday when Purdue scored a 17-to-7 triumph over the Skibos.

STRONG ON DEFENSE

Each team has scored at least one upset victory, Michigan State topping Syracuse's previously undefeated aggregation, 27 to 7, and Carnegie having topped Temple and Notre Dame for an underdog's position.

Today's rivals feature powerful lines and uncertain backfields. Michigan State has a recognized star in Captain McNutt, right halfback, and Fullback McCrary, a big colored boy. Carnegie will depend upon Steve Terebus, pint-sized halfback, for her offensive fireworks.

AERIAL ATTACK DUE

Terebus will likely take care of most of the Tartan forward passing, as well as the running today, for Coach Harpster has announced his starting quarterback as Charley Spisak, a sophomore, in place of Angelo Bevevino, who threw the passes that beat Temple and Notre Dame.

Michigan State will watch Lib Lewis, Tech's best pass receiver, closely today. It will be Lewis' first start since he scored against Notre Dame on the third play of the Tartan-Irish tilt.

MARTIN GETS POST

LATROBE, Pa., Nov. 11. (AP.) Chalmers W. (Pinky) Martin, a native of Pittsburgh, yesterday was appointed assistant athletic director of St. Vincent College. Martin, a Notre Dame graduate, will take care of the scouting and scheduling of games.

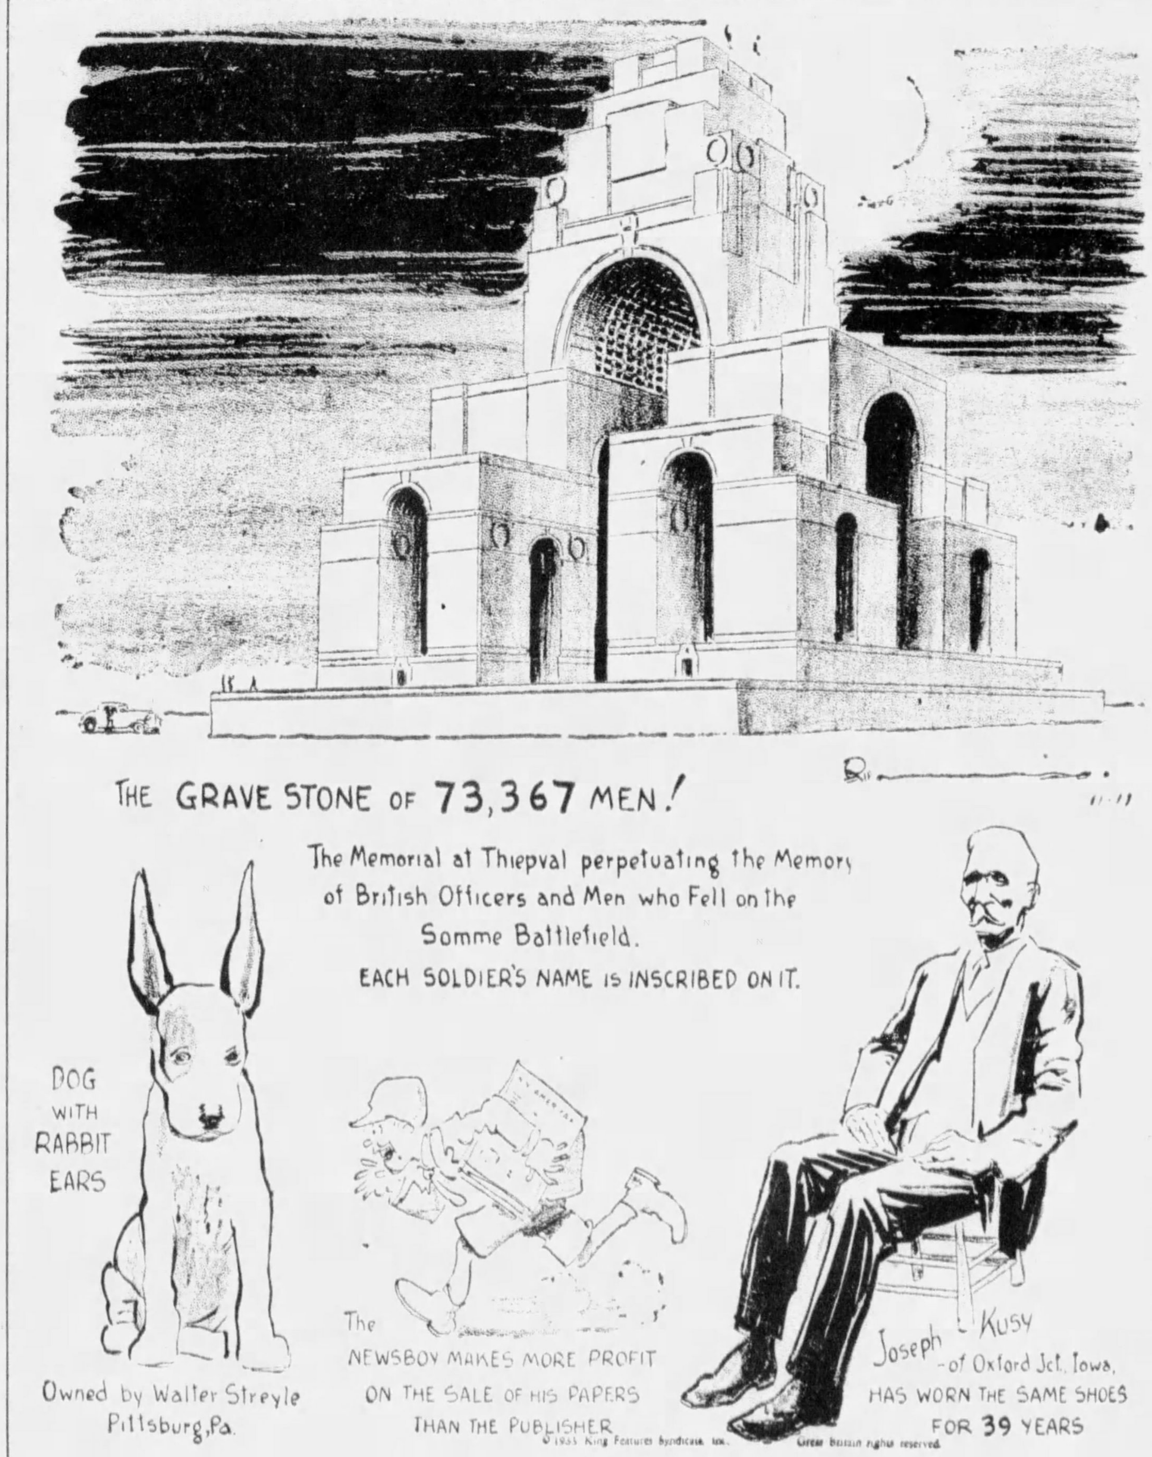
By Ripley

(On request, sent with stamped addressed envelope, Ripley will send proofs and details of anything depicted by him in these cartoons.)



EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: TANKS—The tank was invented by Maj. Gen. Swinton, of the British Army, based on the propelling principle of the caterpillar farm tractor invented by an American, Benjamin Holt, of California, about 1900. A large number of tanks was manufactured in Britain between August, 1916, and March, 1917. To prevent the secret from leaking out to the enemy, the British government permitted it to be whispered about that the huge machines were intended to carry water to the British armies fighting in Egypt. They were called "cisterns" or "reservoirs" at first, but later the shorter word "tank" was adopted and stuck. The tank was the surprise of the World War and offset the Central Powers' initial superiority in machine guns and central mobility. Both the "Poison and its Antidote" (Machine Gun and Tank) are based on American inventions.

hind in rating when it comes to reserves, the Dukes nevertheless will spot Pitt strength at three important positions, the ends and fullback.

A year ago, in the first meeting The Duquesne wings, who have played sterling ball in all games this fall, will face the acid test as they essay to crack the Pitt attack, which strikes viciously at the ends and tackles, and which has caused despair to better terminals than the Duquesners in games pa...

The center of the Red and Blue line, too, is in for a tough afternoon. Pitt this fall has directed the majority of its power plays inside the tackles, and led by battering 190-pound Izzy Weinstock and fast and elusive Heinie Weisenbaugh, have caused considerable damage to all and sundry opponents.

The Dukes have made no secret of the fact that they expect to cause Pitt trouble with their aerial game. With Al DeLuca on the tossing end, and any one of a half a dozen ambitious huskies ready to grab Al's tosses, it will take the most alert and wide awake defensive play on the part of the Panthers to keep the Bluffites from crossing the goal line.

AERIALS MAY FEATURE

The Dukes, too, must be ready to stop a well laid air attack. Pitt this fall has taken to the air with telling effect, even passing with great success against the usually potent Notre Dame defense. It was a pass, thrown by Howdy O'Dell and caught by Mike Sebastian, that paved the way for the second touchdown at South Bend.

A week ago Centre College's defense was riddled by a barrage of Pitt passes.

The rival elevens have come up to today's classic, and it is a classic, too, in excellent physical and mental condition, did the man say. Yep, that is what he said. Here's the dope:

The Dukes, naturally enough, have been pointing for the contest since they were beaten a year ago. They have plenty to gain, not everything, for they've already demonstrated that they are a real football team, but enough to want, rant their entering today's clash grimly determined to give everre ounce of energy they have, puted Pitt, beaten by Minnesota back nobly by taking Notre 588.62, but they cannot afford to Atty. day. It will be no disgraced Place 181,

PEABODY, SOUTH HILLS WIN GRID TITLES

43 Players Nominated For Rating

By CHRISTY WALSH

Member, All-America Board of Football. (Reg. U. S. Pat. Office.)

With the more consistent players improving their performance every Saturday, with the campaigns for sectional and conference titles reaching the decisive stage, and with football's traditional rivals meeting in the crucial and harder combats of the season the number of players rating All-America is rapidly increasing.

All America Ratings

Forty-three recommendations from competent observers, newspaper writers, coaches and members of the All-America Board were received and carefully investigated this week, and the task of eliminating all but 10 was difficult. The board has selected the following players to receive the official card of merit:

1—CHESIRE, University of California at Los Angeles. An alert, determined, unstoppable sophomore halfback whose all-around play stood out in a scoreless tie against the powerful California Bears.

2—PURVIS, Purdue. A 52-yard run was the highlight of his day's work, but from whistle to whistle this versatile back blocked hard, tackled deadly and kicked with an unerring toe against Carnegie Tech. (Noble Kizer, Purdue coach.)

3—NOTT, Detroit. Outstanding star in the downfall of Holy Cross, hitherto without defeat. He completed 12 out of 22 passes, punted eight times for a 44-yard average and utilized every ounce of his 190 pounds in wearing down the opposition. (Frank McDonald, Times, Detroit.)

4—LANE, Princeton. Strenuously plying his trade as an extraordinary lineman, this Princeton tackle was a major factor on offense and defense. He opened big holes and blocked the kick that gave his team its initial score. (Coach Eddie Casey, All-America Board.)

5—WILSON, Brigham Young. His team lost in a Rocky Mountain blizzard, but this rugged back was spectacular in passing, punting and carrying the ball. Averaged 3.8 yards in 15 trips, returned a kick 35 yards and punted 66 yards to the five-yard line—all on a frozen field. (Frank K. Baker, Telegram, Salt Lake City. C. L. Parsons, Post, Denver.)

6—JORGENSEN, St. Mary's. Best tackle seen in New York City this season and key man in a great, hard-charging line that stopped three vicious Fordham assaults on St. Mary's goal.

7—GRANT, Georgia. He gained 89 yards in 12 running attempts, scoring all of his team's points against Florida. Accurate receiver, great open field runner, sure on kicking goals and a scoring threat from any spot on the field. (Ed Danforth, Georgian, Atlanta.)

8—MONTGOMERY, Columbia. Against Cornell, this triple-threat Columbian put on one of the grandest exhibitions of passing seen in years. Eleven out of 22 shots went for gains—several good for 40 yards. Not one bad pass in 22 attempts, although half were not completed. (Bill Slocum, American, New York City.)

9—DANOWSKI, Fordham. This fiery Fordham leader thrilled the season's greatest Eastern crowd by his running, kicking, blocking, tackling—and fighting—in a furious game against a bigger and stronger team.

10—CRAWFORD, Duke. This hard-charging tackle played havoc with Auburn's backs and all but wrecked its line. He covered punts, rushed kicks and passes, swung out in interference and was all over the field on defense. (Zipp Newman, News, Birmingham, Ala., Wallace Wade, head coach, Duke.)

Seaback Leader In Cue Tourney

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Charles Seaback of Astoria, N. Y., went into undisputed lead last night in the National championship billiard tournament when he defeated William Mosconi, of Philadelphia, 125 to 76 in seven innings.

The defeat relegated Mosconi to third place with George Kelly, another Philadelphian, holding second as result of his defeat of Eddie Sauers, of Oakland, Cal., today.

Fight Results

Langley	0	4	1

The Peabody and South Hills High School grid stars were wearing new honors today signifying supremacy in the City High School League. In Section I, the Peabody boys had to be satisfied with a scoreless deadlock with Schenley High as the East Enders clinched their sectional title. South Hills rode to top honors in Section II through a convincing victory over Langley High. The score was 26 to 7.

The new champions replace Westinghouse and Perry, who won the honors in the respective sections one year ago.

Schenley sprang a surprise in holding the fast Peabody team to a standstill through four periods. The lads of the Bellefield district had a lot of stubbornness in their defense when danger threatened. Peabody had to be awake to thwart one scoring attempt on the part of Schenley. Brien blocked Betts' field goal attempt from the 30-yard line. Peabody made eight first downs to four for Schenley.

VICTOR'S OFFENSE CLEVER

South Hills unleashed a great running and aerial attack to smack down Langley. With Fowle doing the passing and Crissman receiving, the victors ploughed along for three touchdowns in the first two periods. Langley sprang an unexpected forward passing attack in the final period to score a touchdown.

Perry had a rather soft time as it achieved a 19-0 success over Oliver as a donation to the closing of the City League competition. Heiber, DiMatteo and Haug starred for the victors.

Westinghouse brought its league competition to a close as it engaged Taylor Allderdice in a stalemate unproductive of scoring. There was little to choose between the play of the two clubs in this scrap.

SCOTT DOWNS ERIE TEAM

Scott High, of North Braddock, rang down the curtain last night with a decisive victory over the strong Vincent High School, of Erie. The score was 25 to 0, Scott going through the season without a defeat.

Scott scored on the first play after the kickoff on a pass, J. Gross to Ferguson. The victorious team was held scoreless only in the third period.

The autobus carrying the Erie boys to North Braddock was wrecked in a snowdrift near Meadville. Two members of the grid squad, Joseph Defazio and Sylvester Veraduro, were taken to a Meadville hospital, suffering from slight bruises.

REDSTONE COPS ANOTHER

Derry Township took a fall out of Arnold as it won, 12 to 6, in a hot game; Redstone Township kept up its fast pace by winning over South Brownsville, 19-0. It was Redstone's sixth straight success.

Edgewood High won over East McKeesport, 20-0; Springdale trimmed Oakmont, 20-0; Mt. Lebanon defeated Fifth Avenue, 25-0; Sewickley managed to down Coraopolis, 7-6; Bellevue defeated Ben Avon, 12-0, and St. Justins downed St. Marys, 14-0.

PLAY IN PEABODY-SCHENLEY HIGH SCHOOL GAME ON LATTER'S FIELD . . . FORBECK, PEABODY, HELD FOR DOWNS ON THREE-YARD LINE

SCHOOL RIVALS CLASH TODAY

By JULIUS LEVIN

Greensburg High School will have a chance to tie New Castle for first place in the class AA division of the W. P. I. A. L. today when the Brown and White eleven engages Monessen at Greensburg in one of the four double A attractions on the schedule.

The other three games find Norwin at McKeesport, Turtle Creek Union at Wilkinsburg and Charleroi at Washington.

Greensburg has scored three straight victories in this division and another today will enable it to tie New Castle for first place. Jeannette, tied with Greensburg for second place, is not scheduled to play a league game today.

This season is likely to be the last for the double A group, which had its inception last season. Monessen and Charleroi will present pleas to be dropped at a meeting of the W. P. I. A. L. football committee in the Fort Pitt Hotel Tuesday afternoon.

The withdrawal of these two schools will make it difficult for the remaining members to schedule their required number of league games and the division likely will be disrupted for the 1934 season.

The headliners in class A today find the undefeated Monongahela eleven staking its hopes for the title on the outcome of its battle with California at Monongahela. Ambridge, the defending champion, winds up its regular season by meeting Midland at Ambridge.

W. VA. FRESHIES DEFEAT W. & J.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Nov. 11.—West Virginia's Freshman eleven rolled up two touchdowns on the Yearlings of Washington and Jefferson in the first period yesterday afternoon and the rest was easy. The Mountaineer kids coasted in during the remaining portions of the battle. The score was 19 to 0.

Forward passes were responsible for the early touchdowns annexed by the home team. After these had been made, the young Presidents stiffened and there was no more scoring until the last quarter, when the local freshies made their last touchdown. Kell intercepted a forward pass to provide the impetus for this score.

Reds' Prexy Seeks Playing Manager

CINCINNATI, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—The Enquirer says it has learned from an authoritative but undisclosed source that Donie Bush will not pilot the Cincinnati Reds in 1934. The disclosure, says the newspaper, was made as Larry MacPhail, new president-designate of the club, prepared for an extensive tour to line up new talent for the team which finished in the National League cellar the last three seasons.

Without criticism of the management by Bush, who came here last spring after guiding the Minneapolis Millers to the American Association pennant, adds the story, MacPhail has decided he wants a playing manager if he can obtain the right man.

KARCIS TO PLAY WITH DODGERS

By TOM BIRKS

John Karcis, former Carnegie Tech backfield ace, will start at fullback for the Brooklyn Dodgers when they clash with the Pittsburgh Pirates at Forbes Field tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. This was indicated yesterday when Coach McGowan, of the Dodgers, had the big boy from Tech in the backfield as the Dodgers worked out at Tech Bowl.

Karcis, long a favorite with Pittsburgh collegiate football followers, is in fine shape and, apparently, he likes professional football.

The fact that the bowl was in icy condition did not stop the Dodger mentor from holding a strenuous workout. The last game in Brooklyn did not suit the Dodgers, and touchdowns, instead of field goals, are in their minds.

Chris Cagle, former Army, all-America star, was calling the signals from the quarterback position, and his famous passing attack is going to play a big part in the Brooklyn offensive tomorrow. Shipwreck Kelly, former Tennessee star, and Thomason will be the starting halfbacks.

The Pittsburghers held a long workout at the Hunt Armory. Coach Jap Douds had Holmer, former Northwestern star, calling the signals. Pittsburgh fans have yet to see Holmer in action.

Stansbury, Neale Backed by Hodges

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Athletics Director H. A. Stansbury, of West Virginia University, has a staunch defender in State Senator Charles E. Hodges, one of those prominently mentioned as his possible successor should he be ousted.

A protest meeting of disgruntled alumni is scheduled for Thanksgiving Day seeking to pass a resolution asking removal of Stansbury. Hodges said:

"I wish it known that I am opposed to and shall seek to prevent the elimination of Director Stansbury with all the personal influence that I may be able to exercise.

"It is my judgment that his removal would not only be undeserved and unjustifiable by all the facts of his past incumbency of more than 16 years, but that it would be a mistake as far as the future athletic policies of the institution are concerned."

Hodges also came to the support of Football Coach Earle Neale.

PITT, DUKES STAGE CLASSIC

to a team as fine as that of Duquesne's, but it will spoil a fine record if they do. Pitt hasn't lost a game to an eastern opponent since 1928 and have succumbed only twice since 1924 in a November game.

RIVALS MEAN BUSINESS

An angle to the struggle which hardly will work to the advantage of the Dukes is that the Panthers are taking the game just as seriously as are the Bluffites. It will be no overconfident eleven that will be out there battling for Pitt this afternoon.

Regular lineups on both sides will be in order. Coach Sutherland is not quite sure as to his center position; whether he'll start Kliskey, again ready for the football wars, or whether he'll continue to use the brilliant Shotwell. The backfield will have Munjas at quarter, O'Dell and Sebastian at the halves and Weinstock at full.

On the line, Muggsy Skladany, Pitt's all-America end candidate, and Harvey Rooker will get the call at the wings. Walton and Meredith will go at the tackles and Hartwig and Onder at the guards.

For the Dukes, Cutrona, DeLuca, the fast-stepping Art Strutt and Zaninelli will make up the backfield. Capt. Al Krankota and Baker will guard the ends, Niccolai and Sinko the tackles, Weinberg or Kakasic and Rado the guards and Ben Ciccone the center spot.

HALFBACKS IN LIMELIGHT

Strutt, by the way, is the lad the Panthers have been drilled to stop, and if the husky Duke continues in the fine stride he's been going all fall he'll give the Pitt lads a busy afternoon.

There will be a special incentive for Mike Sebastian to go to town in today's game. A host of his home friends and admirers in Sharon is going to send the dashing Panther halfback a flock of well-wisher telegrams, as was done prior to the Notre Dame game, and Mike's mother will be in her accustomed chair in front of a radio, listening to the account of the game and to the report of the doings of her Mike. Watch Mike today.

Fifteen thousand unsold tickets will go on sale today, it was announced last night by Don Harrison, athletic director at Pitt.

Between halves a pair of 9-to-12-year-old teams from Shady Side Academy and Arnold School will stage a curtailed contest, which should be a pip. Eddie Shultz, one of the Pitt freshmen coaches and the pilot of the Panther B eleven, will referee, with Dr. Eddie Baker serving as umpire and Bill Sullivan as linesman. The lineup for this game follows:

Shady Side—		Arnold—
11 T. Hilliard	L.E.	Stewart 9
26 Cole	L.T.	Monro 5
14 Chess	L.G.	Rudd 6
13 McKnight	C.	Doolittle 17
23 Reid	R.G.	Lehman 15
11 H. Hilliard	R.T.	Hays 16
20 Downes	R.E.	Gustafson 56
12 Millerici	Q.B.	Thomas 26
28 Weil	L.H.	Reid 25
22 Posner	R.H.	Smith 22
21 Rodgers	F.B.	Wahlgren 11

Shady Side substitutes: Johnston (10), Jamison (15), Lewis (19), Kaufman (18), Pierpont (25), Hunt (24), Gibbons (27), Mitchell (29), Harris (30).

Arnold substitutes: Waains (10), Landon (12), Youngman (20), Weitzel (21), Jones (24), Beattie (27), Bradenbaugh (28), Verner (34), Chesley (35).

ARMY BIG FAVORITE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 11.—(INS.)—Harvard and the Army will play to a complete sell-out football crowd of 57,000 today. There is no doubt about the because all but a few seats have already been sold. The Cadets were a 3 to 1 favorite to take the Crimson, but Harvard followers believed these odds were entirely out of line.

GAMES LEGAL IN PHILLY

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 11.—(INS.)—Two professional football teams will play here tomorrow, and when the games are over this city will have seen its first legal Sabbath sporting events since 1794. Mayor J. Hampton Moore signed the sports licensing bill which the City Council pushed through last Tuesday to make the double event possible tomorrow.

SHORE REINSTATED

EDMONTON, Alberta, Nov. 11.—(INS.)—Eddie Shore, Boston Bruins' star defense man, was back in the fold today with his suspension lifted. Shore was the last of the league holdouts to fall into line.

W. & J. HUMBLED IN TILT WITH COLONIALS

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 11.—The Presidents, of Washington, Pa., today were aware of the fact that they had been on the losing end of two successive gridiron struggles of considerable importance. The Wash-Jeff stars,

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

(Owing to the illness of Walter Winchell, this column is being written by Paul Yawitz until Mr. Winchell's recovery.)

Dumb!

I deemed you, darling, one of those Intent on Fashion;
A mind interminably on clothes,
And never passion.

I deemed you one who never let
Your feelings rise;
A girl impossible to pet,
And coldly wise.

Do you recall the day we kissed,
The love we tasted?
Oh, darling! All the fun we missed!
The time we wasted!

—Wilfred J. Funk.

Thirft

Joseph Connolly, King Features chieftain, tells us the latest Scotch gag. MacIntosh had a severe headache and his wife suggested that he permit her to go to the store for some aspirin.

"Yes, I think it will do me some good," he spoke in agony.

Four hours elapsed and the wife was still busying herself about the kitchen. Irritated, MacIntosh cried:

"Well, why haven't you gone yet."

You Tell Him

Hal Shocket wires to ask:

"How soon after selling Phil Baker a new gag can a writer start suing Milton Berle?"

A Salute

When "Prince" Michael Romanoff opened as the master-of-ceremonies in a West Side night club last week, he received this wire from Paul Whiteman:

"The King doffs his Crown to the Prince."

A Matter of Lights

Incidentally, the proprietors of the asylum were anxious to get Mike's name up in lights over the entrance, but the size of the electric sign had its limitations. So, after much consideration, it was condensed to 'PR M ROMANOFF.'

But the paramount irony is the fact that the proprietor, an obscure vaudevillian who never so much as stowed away on a row-boat or hob-nobbed with deposed royalty (some of whom work in his kitchen) insisted on placing his own name in lights —above that of Romanoff!

In the Continental Manner

It is further interesting to note that the pseudo royal-blood had learned much about the manners of Continental stars who invariably insist that night club and stage managers pay them at the end of each day. So Mike incorporated a clause in his contract that permitted him to demand 50 per cent of his daily salary at the end of each appearance. But with the exception of a small advance, the charming imposter was unable up to Wednesday morning to collect any of his moneys.

"Why don't you walk out if you can't get your pay?" a friend asked him.

Mike drew up in dignity, flung imaginary ermines about his regal shoulders and intoned:

"Rather not, sir. It is an emperor's prerogative to demand. And if they paid me up, where else could I find someone who'd have to listen to my demands?"

Angels Tread

That exclusive group of gazetteers, who are honored with opening night seats in the theater, have noticed in recent months that the pews assigned to them are further and further to the rear of the house.

The best explanation for this is offered by Mark Barron who attends premiers for the Assoc. Press. The great majority of current productions, he points out, are angel'd by men new to the theater, the list of old-line producers having dwindled to a mere hand full. As a result, the gentry who put their money into a play, being unfamiliar with the conventions, insist that the first five or six rows be reserved for their friends. Accordingly, on opening night, the front of the orchestra is occupied by beaming mammas, aunts and next-door neighbors.

8he greatest evil which the new generation of producers has introduced is the continuous claque. At most Broadway premiers you can even expect applause from the producer's family every time an usheress seats a patron with halfway precision.

Not the NRA

The Inquisition

Frank Condon, the Sat. Eve. Post's ace writer, appeared at the registration office prior to recent elections, and gave the clerk his name, address and occupation. But the clerk didn't understand and asked:

"You say you're a what?"

"I'm an author," replied Condon.

The clerk was puzzled.

"Tell me that again," he said.

Condon repeated his statement.

"Occupation—Other."

"And have you ever voted before?"

To which Condon answered that he had not.

"Never voted before?" oozed the clerk with disgust. "Well, pal, before I can okay you, you'll have to go downtown and take the illiteracy test."

Warning

Wiley Appleby asserts he overheard it in a Brooklyn speak.

"This liquor won't hurt my eyes, will it?" queried a new customer.

"No," retorted the bar-keep. "Not if you have the money to pay for it."

Dry Era Data On Screen

THE GLOBE TROTTER

Prohibition, its beginning and end, and some outstanding incidents of its notorious career over the period of 13 years of its existence, is pictured in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. Included are pictures of Andrew J. Volstead, father of the enforcement act; battle between Coast Guard and rum runners; the gangster era, with police fighting pistol duels in the streets with bootleggers; Al Capone's departure for jail; Al Smith heading the anti-dry campaign; Franklin D. Roosevelt at Chicago pledging himself for repeal, and finally Congress passing the act that authorized the states to vote on the much debated question.

George Hearst, eldest son of William Randolph Hearst, is presented with a commission as Lieutenant - Commander of the Naval Reserve by Secretary of the Navy Swanson in Washington. The Secretary praises Mr. Hearst for his interest in naval affairs.

Note: Because of the necessity upon theater managers to arrange programs in time schedules, it is possible that some of the subjects in the above issue of Hearst Metrotone News may not be shown in your theater.

Variety Dark Next Week

The Variety will be closed next week and will reopen with a midnight show Sunday night, November 19, again under the management of George Jaffe. A week ago Jaffe announced his retirement from the show business, turning the theater over to employes. For the past week the Variety was operated under the co-operative plan by employes.

The reopening attraction will be Jaffe's "Burlesk Revue," with a cast of 50 persons. Heading the principals will be Lola Bartrum, dancer, who in 1931 was chosen "Miss New York. She has appeared in a number of musical comedy productions and in vaudeville.

Among other performers will be Eddie Kaplin, Harry (Shuffle) Le Van, John Barry and Sammy Clark, all comics; Les K. Spangler, straightman; Al Goss, dancing juvenile; Diana Barton and Frances McAvoy, oriental dancers; Joan Maith, soprano; Bebe Tobin, singer and dancer; Jean Carroll, prima donna; Peggy Brooks, "blues" singer; Elaine Jarvis, singer, and her brother, Gene Jarvis, singer and dancer.

"Burlesk Revue" is promised to be the biggest burlesque show to be presented at the Variety in many seasons. LeVan appeared here in the old Gayety Theater in 1923.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Nov. 11. To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Well, we got a lot of excitement out here in Los Angeles. Five United States senators arrived here to investigate, and the fan dancer from the Chicago Fair, arrived to be investigated. It looks like a worthwhile session.

Will Rogers

The dollar was lower in Europe than it has ever been before. That a tough break for the millions that go to see Europe, and have never been farther away from home in their own country than the garage.

The dollar may have been cheap in London, but there certainly wasn't any lying around for nothing in our country, and after all it is a home talent commodity.

Yours, WILL.

Romamce for Ringside Fans

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Mr. Seibel

Myrna Loy as the Lady also deserves praise for very sincere work, along with Otto Kruger, as a noble racketeer who loves the fair Myrna. Max takes the bad man's best girl from him, but Otto does not put him on the spot. Although Max proves very unworthy—an easy mark for several cheap vamps, the bad man realizes that Myrna still loves Max, and sees to it that they are reunited at the end, after Max has won the big fight in which Jack Dempsey himself is the referee.

That fight is worth seeing, for it is a real fight though the sluggers emerge with a few little abrasions. The Italian man-mountain himself, Jess Willard, and several other ex-champs add to the scenery. Our own Vince Barnett has a nice bit of character comedy. The story is consistent and gripping, but the big thing is the fight—it is a real fight with a ringside seat for everybody, and Walter Huston as a star.

Connie 'Spy' At Warner

By MARGARET RUSSELL

Why Miss Bennett chooses the Mati Hari theme, with a happy ending, is partially explained by how lovely she looks in her numerous impersonations of night club singer, seamstress and Red Cross nurse in the course of her espionage.

The story has the suitable accoutrements of a girl-spy yarn—tissue paper messages, concealed in lockets and charms, invisible ink, intercepted messages, narrow escapes, strange hide-outs under barn floors, deserted huts and the entanglements of love under two flags.

Miss Bennett sings very well and looks very Marlene Dietrich-ish in her night club role; very demure and capable in her seamstress moments and very sweet and efficient in her nurse's uniform.

Gilbert Roland is altogether satisfactory as a dashing, enthusiastic suitor, confronted with the uncomfortable task of maybe shooting the lady of his dreams and aspirations. But the lady tells him she would forgive him even if he did shoot her. And fortunately he doesn't have to.

The Warner program includes Fox Movietone News, a Harry Langdon comedy, "On Ice," Wheeler and Woolsey in an NRA official featurette, "Signing 'Em Up," and a "bouncing ball" musical short subject entitled "I Like Mountain Music" with the Eton Boys.

MUSIC

String Symphonic Ensemble

Carnegie Music Hall

PROGRAM

Romanze in G ..... Sibelius
Symphonie Spirituelle ..... Hamerik
Serenade, Op. 20 ..... Elgar
Norwegian Melodies ..... Grieg
a—Popular Tune.
b—Cow Keeper's Tune.
c—Country Dance.

The String Symphonic Ensemble Society of Pittsburgh continued making musical history for us last night in Carnegie Music Hall, playing the first concert of what promises to be a successful season. The hall was nearly filled and proves that the ensemble has taken on new life since it moved over from the Lecture Hall.

Mr. Lissfelt

Del Bianco has surely been busy with rehearsal and each work showed the results of his untiring effort. There is fuller and more consistently good tone in his playing though there remain some rhythmic difficulties still to be ironed out.

Our interest centered naturally in the new compositions played, the little symphony of Hamerik and Elgar's serenade. Hamerik is somewhat diffuse, though pleasantly melodic without ever reaching a really high spot. Elgar on the other hand is scholarly, soberly English, and to the point. The serenade had a pleasant flow and was most ingratiating.

There are to be four more concerts of this ensemble, a golden opportunity it now seems for the organization to establish its worth in the community as a permanent factor in our musical life.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

Goes A-Spying

SYLVIA SIDNEY'S NEXT PICTURE, "REUNION," WILL BE A STORY OF WAR SPIES

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

The Best Policy

DAY AFTER day, Eddie walked endless miles searching for work. On rare occasions, he contrived to interview an employment manager. Sometimes the gentleman was brusque and growled a surly, "Nothing doing!" Sometimes he was a trifle kinder and allowed Eddie to leave his name or advised him to return later. But the net result was always the same. Eddie didn't get a job.

Late in the afternoon he returned to his home, far uptown. It wasn't much of a home, merely a bleak, two-room apartment. But Anna was there, and Anna had a magic way of making his discouragement disappear when she smiled and told him not to worry. Tomorrow, she said, something would turn up.

But tomorrow never arrived, nor the job either. And as Eddie plodded homeward in the early dusk of a late autumn day, he was contemplating the future with something very much like terror. There was very little money left of their small savings. The rent was long overdue.

Anna met him at the door as usual. One glance at his face could tell her that the results of the day's job-hunting were exactly the same as those of every other day. But she smiled brightly.

"Eddie,' she told him, "there's a man waiting for you. I told him you'd be home any minute, and he said he'd wait. He says his name is Joe Grant."

Eddie frowned. He knew little about Joe Grant, but then neither did anybody else. He always had plenty of money and plenty of leisure, and he drove a car that was large and powerful. He wore dark clothes, his manner was quiet, and he spoke in a low, smooth voice. Too low and too smooth, Eddie thought.

He muttered, "That crook!" as he went into the room where Joe was waiting. When Anna left the two alone, Joe began to speak in his oily voice.

"Listen, Eddie," he said, "I heard you were out of work and kind of up against it. I can put you in on something that would be pretty good for you." Eddie shook his head.

"I don't think I'd care for anything like what you're in," he growled.

"But Eddie," Joe insisted, "it's a cinch, and the dough would be pretty nice. You wouldn't have to go on living in a dump like this. You won't get another chance like this again, and you wouldn't get it now only I'd like to help you. All you need is a gun—and a little nerve."

"Thanks." Eddie's voice was surly. "I'm not interested."

The other man shrugged.

"Okay," he murmured, "if that's the way you want it. I think you're a sap myself. And what about her?" He waved his hand in the direction of the kitchen. "How long do you think she'll want to stick with you while you're broke like this? No woman—"

Eddie broke in angrily, "I'll worry about my wife, if it's all the same to you. Now beat it!"

Joe went. When he was alone, Eddie dropped his hands in his face and sat without moving for a long time. Words were one thing, but he didn't feel very noble at that particular moment. And what Joe had said about Anna, had stuck home.

He went out into the kitchen where Anna was preparing supper. He slipped his arms around her.

"Honey, he asked, "I know it couldn't happen, but tell me. Is there any chance that I'll lose you because I'm broke and can't give you things? Is there?"

"Not a chance in the world," she reassured him.

Eddie went on, "But it is true, that women want things, that they can't be happy without money and clothes and things like that?"

"Eat your supper," his wife ordered, "and stop talking nonsense."

The weeks that followed were harder than ever for Eddie. Because, in spite of himself, he couldn't help remembering Joe's offer. And what he had said about Anna's not sticking. Sometimes it seemed silly to Eddie, this lofty attitude of his. Once or twice he was sorely tempted. He felt a strong urge to call up Joe and tell him that he had reconsidered. But something always held him back. A desire to go on living honestly and decently—without the gun and the required nerve.

And then, just as things looked the worst, when the landlord was the most insistent, and the money almost completely gone, Eddie found a job. It's wasn't much of a job. The pay was small, the hours long, and the work hard. But Eddie was extremely glad to get it.

He was feeling very happy as he hurried home to tell Anna the news. He could hardly wait to reach the flat where Anna would be waiting for him.

But tonight Anna wasn't waiting. The apartment was dark, and when he switched on the lights, he discovered that something very strange had taken place. Anna's things were gone, and Anna was gone, and in their place was the inevitable note on the kitchen table.

"Eddie," she had written, "I'm sorry. But I haven't been happy lately, and there's no sense in going on under those conditions. You were right. A woman does need certain things to make her happy, and you couldn't give them to me. Joe Grant can, and I'm going away with him.

"I could have stood the hardships, though, Eddie, if Joe hadn't told me about the job that he offered you and which you turned down. Under the circumstances, you might have done it for me. It might not have been exactly pleasant, but Joe got along all right.

Clever Dances On Pitt Bill

By ZORA D. UNKOVICH

Of a finished quality is the dancing in "Footlight Revue," one of whose best numbers is a skating waltz done with a beauty of ease to which the audience failed to respond in deserved measure. Equally lovely in the revue is a soft adagio, a true study in rhythm.

Blonde Miss Loma Worth plays enough instruments to stock a music store, throwing in a few measures of song and one or two clog steps to insure her claim to her title of "Miss Versatility Herself."

Comedy is provided in varied forms. Harry J. Conley makes his laugh bid in a character sketch of and 18-year-old who realizes at an all-night party that his father "hasn't told him everything." The St. Clair Sisters and O'Day in their turn cavort about the stage on everying in cycles from a kiddy-cart affair to one-wheeled stilts.

Bayes and Speck make the audience like them to the extent of an encore in an act entitled "The Assassins of Song," though strange to say they make only one feeble attempt to sing. Another comedy team, Biglo and Long, confine their humor to laugh-provoking dances, emphasizing the long and short of their respective figures.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

After tonight's performance of "A Trip to Pressburg" the Nixon will be dark three nights, the next attraction being booked for the last three days of next week. This will be Cornelia Otis Skinner in three programs of solo characterizations. They will include "The Wives of Henry VIII," "The Loves of Charles II" and "The Empress Eugenie." Each of these monodramas will be preceded by character sketches.

Beginning next Tuesday the drama school of Tech will present "Man and the Masses," by Ernest Toler, under the direction of E. W. Hickman. It will continue for a full week, the closing performance to be given Monday evening, November 20.

* * *

The Pitt Players, of the University of Pittsburgh, will present Robert E. Sherwood's comedy, "The Queen's Husband," in the Hotel Schenley ballroom Thursday evening, November 16, under the direction of Carl Cass.

Young Sister Of Novarro Gets Test

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 10.—Dreams of motion picture stardom hover before the eyes of Carmen Samaniego, 19-year-old sister of Ramon Novarro, who took the first step yesterday when she made a screen test for the role of Ramon's sister in "Laughing Boy."

Until contracts are signed, the young Mexican beauty is holding her breath, but studio officials seem confident that she will get the part and become the second of the large Samaniego family to follow a screen career.

Oddly enough, Carmen, like Ramon, originally intended to become a dancer. She made her first public appearance before a group of film stars in the Teatro Intimo, the little show-shop in Ramon's house in Twenty-second street, where the Mexican star occasionally stages performances for the amusement of himself and of his friends. Later, Carmen danced at the benefit for the Tampico hurricane sufferers.

Unknown to all but a few friends, she also has been studying dramatic expression under Ramon's sternly critical eye.

Someone at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer heard about it, had a bright idea and ordered the test.

Bennie Ziedman, diminutive producer, has a habit of walking with both hands in his pockets. As he entered the Universal commissary yesterday, John M. Stahl asked him why.

Little Charlotte Henry, the girl who plays Alice, will begin a personal appearance tour of eight weeks before her picture is even released. She'll visit 15 or 20 cities and be back in Hollywood almost before the film has its premiere.

And here's an interesting note. "Alice in Wonderland" will have a simultaneous release in every English-speaking country. The date probably will be December 22.

The film adventures of Alice will include episodes from "Through the Looking Glass" as well as from "Alice in Wonderland."

Latest stars to go air-minded are Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey. The two comedians have bought a four-seater plane and will use it to hop from City to city on their coming tour with a musical comedy. The tour will begin as soon as they finish "Hip, Hips Hooray" at RKO.

STOCK MARKET FLUCTUATIONS NARROW

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—Extreme quietness prevailed in the early stock trading today. Prices were narrowly mixed, minor recessions predominating. Tobaccos were in light supply, American Tobacco B and Liggett & Myers B losing a point or so each. Metals were narrow.

American Telephone eased a point while American Can, Union Pacific, American Smelting and National Distillers dipped slightly. U. S. Steel, U. S. Smelting and Allied Chemical ruled steady.

In early trading the British pound sterling showed a loss of 7 cents at $5.03½; French francs dropped .08½ of a cent to 6.18½ cents, and Dutch guilders declined nearly a cent at 63.73 cents. Belgian belgas, Swiss francs, German marks and other European currencies were also reactionary.

Although the markets in London and Paris were closed for the holiday, the British advanced the price of gold 5½ pence to 130 shillings 11½ pence an ounce. Based on the London opening of sterling at $5.09, this was equivalent to about $33.12. The R. F. C. also advanced the domestic gold price 12 cents to $33.32 an ounce.

The financial sector exhibited much interest in reports from Washington that, because of the repeal of the prohibition amendment, the President probably would renounce four "recovery" taxes enacted to produce some $227,000,000 annually for financing the $3,300,000,000 public works program. These taxes are the additional levy of one-half cent a gallon on gasoline, a five per cent dividend tax, a capital stock tax and excess profits tax. New liquor taxes, it was said, would take the place of those to be repealed.

PRICE OF GOLD 12c HIGHER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—With the dollar asserting a new found strength, the administration today resumed its practice of fixing the price of its purchases of newly mined gold at a point above world quotations.

While the exchange rate moved from $5.13 to $5.02½ in the day's dealings at London, carrying the price of gold there from $33.12 to $32.69, a price of $33.32 was established for the Reconstruction Corporation's purchases of domestic metal.

Yesterday the domestic price was set below the London figure and almost immediately the dollar reversed a trend which had carried it to record low levels. Government bonds, losses in which had caused officials some uneasiness, also became firmer.

Washington wondered whether it was the intention of the administration to keep the dollar loosely pegged at some point between today's strong figure of $5.02½ and the lowest point of the decline, $5.16¾. Officials would not say.

Today's domestic price was a new high for that quotation. It has gone constantly upward, with the exception of one day when it remained the same as the day previous.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—The American dollar rallied sharply in foreign exchange markets today following its show of resistance to selling pressure yesterday. The British pound sterling dropped 7 cents to $5.03½. French francs yielded .08½ of a cent at 6.18½ cents, and Dutch guilders were down nearly a cent at 63.73 cents. Belgian belgas and Swiss francs declined around ½ cent each and similar losses were recorded by the Scandinavians and German marks.

BUILDING GAINS IN OCTOBER

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—The F. W. Dodge Corporation said today that the construction industry is "forging ahead under steam fired by the quickening effects of the federal public works program."

The corporation said its figures showed that construction contracts awarded during October in the 37 states east of the Rockies totaled $145,367,200. The report said:

"This is a larger volume than has been reported in any month since November, 1931, with the single exception of the May, 1932, total, which exceeded last month's total by less than $1,000,000. Of as great importance is the fact that the October total was 35 per cent larger than the figure of $107,273,900 reported during October, 1932."

DOLLAR'S FALL AND U. S. BOND DROP LINKED

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor of Economics, New York University

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—The sharp declines in the value of the dollar and in the price of government bonds are outstanding among recent developments.

The two things are closely related. The dollar today is backed by little more than government bonds, so the two should move together.

And government bonds are merely government credit.

U. S. CREDIT SLIPS

The joint decline in paper dollars and government bonds shows that the credit standing of the U. S. government is deteriorating. Those new 4¼-3¼ per cent bonds have fallen below par already. The administration's maneuvers have resulted in increasing the interest it has to pay for any new money.

No wonder the reserve banks have curtailed their purchases of government bonds. These bonds are also largely held by banks and insurance companies.

Two other facts are significant. There are signs of a tightening in interest rates. Bill brokers have marked up their discounts. Of course the yield on bonds has risen. This reflects increased uncertainty as to the future, and means a tendency to lower bond prices.

DOLLAR DOWN ABROAD

For the first time, too, the foreign value of the dollar has fallen below the domestic value. Until recently the dollar has been relatively stronger abroad, as seen in the fact that the price of gold has been higher here than in London.

Now the pound sterling has "risen" far above par, which simply means that the dollar has fallen very low in the estimation of both Americans and foreigners. In fact it is now admitted by all there is occurring a flight from the dollar. People are transferring their dollar funds into pounds.

It is a queer phenomenon that anyone should rejoice over this, for in ordinary times it would be regarded as a calamity.

ENGLAND UNCONCERNED

Apparently England shows no concern over the relative rise of the pound, as compared with dollars. This is probably evidence that the fall of the dollar is not stimulating our exports. But more than that it reflects the fact that foreign trade is now controlled by tariffs and various restrictions arrangements among nations, so that currency quotations do not have their normal effect.

England has now joined the other nations in ending the "tariff truce," and will doubtless do as they do in offsetting any trade advantage which the cheap dollar might give us by shutting off imports of our products. No wonder we are turning to Russia!

It is not easy to say what you and I should do to protect ourselves in the face of all this manipulation of our money. Since commodity prices in this country are the chief concern of the administration, and since these prices are nowhere near the announced "objective," it seems that depreciating the dollar will be continued.

HIGHER INTEREST SEEN

In that event, lenders must protect themselves by demanding higher interest rates. (I know of one creditor who recently stipulated payment in terms of platinum!)

Wage earners should watch the cost of living, and insist by all means in their power that wages be raised as fast as living costs r

Savers and people with money should seek some way of "hedging" their dollars, so that as the dollar falls they will get more dollars.

Pennsylvania Crude Oil Stocks Increase

OIL CITY, Pa., Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Stocks of Pennsylvania grade crude oil held by major companies at the end of the day October 2 were 539,529 barrels, an increase of 113,374 barrels over the September figure.

It was the first month in 1933 to show an increase.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

FEDERAL ACTS REVAMPING FINANCE

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—The pressure of the Glass Steagall Banking Act and the Federal Securities Act resulting in a making over of American financial institutions.

Numerous financiers are reluctant to accept the new setup as lasting, and have been marking time in the hope of drastic amendment of these laws. In view of their experimental character, some revision is doubtless necessary and desirable, but the recent revelations of financial misbehavior before the Senate committee on banking and currency are likely to create a public mood which will be indisposed for a time to be tender toward bankers.

Mr. Rukeyser

Instead of adding fuel to the controversy, I have attempted in a reportorial way to learn of some of the institutional changes that are quitely taking place.

NEW OFFERINGS SCANT

With uncertainty as to the outcome, there has in recent months been a dearth of new security offerings. This lack of financing has been ascribable to basic economic factors as well as to legislative difficulties.

The banking act tends to disturb existing capital reservoirs in two ways—first by segregating security affiliates from banks, and, secondly, by requiring private banking houses to choose between underwriting and deposit banking. Bankers are also conscious that still further restrictions may be placed on collateral loans by commercial banks.

Referring to the practical effects of such changes, one eastern financier said:

"The local investment dealer is dependent for his living largely on syndicate participations and no method has as yet been developed whereby large financing can be accomplished, and by this I mean without reference to the securities act. If many of the larger private bankers have to do away with deposits and many of the larger underwriters have to choose between the banking and the investment business, and if many of the banks have to segregate themselves from the investment business, it is apparent that the formation of an underwriting syndicate large enough to carry financing of $25,000,000 and upwards is going to require the grouping together of a large number of bankers or dealers in order to provide the capital."

SELECT CLIENTS

In numerous cities the segregation of affiliates has already taken place, and numerous interested financiers report that there has been no serious disturbance of friendly relations with customers. However, it view of the lack of important new financing, the new setup has not yet demonstrated that it can do the job of getting capital from savers to enterprises.

In view of the severe liabilities set up under the Securities Act for dealers and underwriters, the large well-financed concerns are at least for the time being afraid to act.

Meantime, mushroom corporations are springing up all over the country. They are willing to assume the stated liabilities, because they have little to lose in the way of capital or prestige.

In connection with the large firms, they are selecting their clientele more closely than ever before, and are excluding those who might bring strike suits under the new legislation or otherwise prove trouble makers. Under this new arrangement, it might be as hard to get on the customers' list of some of the big houses as to join an exclusive club. In England, there is some such significance in being on the customers' lists. It is an emblem of standing in the community. Incidentally, members of the London Stock Exchange are not permitted to carry on transactions with strangers.

Because of the cost of compliance with the elaborate demands of the Federal Trade Commission for information, dealers believe that there will be a long term reduction in local capital financing for smaller concerns.

CANADA PERILS U. S. RUM TRADE

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP.)—Unless American Liquor prices are low after repeal retail liquor dealers in the United States may find themselves facing stiff competition from Canada.

L. B. Cordeau, president of the Quebec Liquor Commission, said in Montreal that individuals in the United States could order direct from the commission on a duty paid basis.

Such shipments could not be handled through the United States mail, nor be sent into dry states. Officials of the railway express agency in New York said it was possible that an arrangement might be made with the United States customs by which duty on retail liquor shipments could be paid at the point of origin.

Canadian distillers have an estimated 40,000,000 gallons of whisky on hand with a normal domestic consumption of about 1,000,000 gallons annually.

WOMEN JURORS SEE FAN DANCE

International News Service.

OAKLAND, Cal., Nov. 11.—Millie Devore did her "fan dance" before a jury of 12 women and many spectators, in a demonstration designed to show she was not guilty of a charge of "indecent exposure."

Garbed in rather scanty attire, Miss Devore went through the evolutions of the dance which she described as being "hula in character."

"I just pretended to."

FAIR'S MYSTERY ILL CHECKED

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Nov. 11.—Health authorities today announced that the epidemic of amoebic dysentery, rare tropical disease held responsible here for the deaths of Texas Guinan and 14 others, had been checked.

Investigation disclosed that Texas Guinan, the colorful night club queen, had contracted the disease while playing at the World's Fair last sumer.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 11.—(INS.)—Frederick Eigen, who came here from Chicago to manage the exclusive Penn Athletic Club, died a victim of amoebic dysentery, the World's Fair mystery disease, according to the diagnosis today of Dr. Mitchell P. Warmuth.

SNOW COVERING SOME ROADS

Snow and ice touched roads in and out of Pittsburgh today, according to the Pittsburgh Motor Club, but many were clear at 8 o'clock this morning.

U. S. Route 22 east was reported clear to Blairsville; snow in places to Cresson, and clear from there on.

Other reports were U. S. 30 east, clear; U. S. 30 west, clear; Pittsburgh to Erie, snow and ice, slippery; Pittsburgh to Wheeling, clear; Pittsburgh to Cleveland, snow and ice, slippery; Erie to Buffalo, six to eight inches of snow, bad; and Wheeling to Columbus, road clear.

Religious Education Conference ThisWeek

Pittsburgh problems in the religious education field are to be studied and discussed at a conference to be held in the Second Presbyterian Church, November 16 and 17, under the direction of Pittsburgh Presbytery's committee on Christian education and the national Presbyterian board devoted to that subject.

The board will send from Philadelphia to conduct various groups of the conference Miss Florence E. Norton, director of children's work; the Rev. Frank D. Getty, director of young people's work; and the Rev. William Ralph Hall, general director of the department of home and church.

Tobacco Jobbers To Protest to NRA

Members of the newly-organized Tobacco Jobbers' Salesmen Association of Western Pennsylvania will hold a meeting at the Mayfair Hotel roof garden tonight. M. G. Reiser will be chairman.

Protesting unfair practices in the sale of cigarets at prices below that which the independent dealer can meet, the organization is circulating a petition among independent dealers, to be forwarded to the national NRA headquarters. The petition is expected to bear the names of more than 5,000 merchants.

State Police Detail Removal Resented

NEW BRIGHTON, Pa., Nov. 11.—Abandonment of the New Brighton detail of the state police after 20 years will be protested to Gov. Pinchot. Acting on orders from Harrisburg, Capt. Octdahl, Butler, consolidated the local detail at Butler yesterday, as an economy measure.

County officials said the order was a surprise and indicated steps would be taken to have the detail restored.

WATKINS LAUDS PRICE PROGRAM

Unqualified approval of President Roosevelt's economic program was given by Dr. Ralph J. Watkins, director of the bureau of business research, University of Pittsburgh, in an address at a luncheon in the Chamber of Commerce. He said in part:

"Although many bankers and economists maintain those policies are not sufficient to bring about the desired rise in the general price level, they already have brought about marked increases in the wholesale commodity price index.

"The belief that they will serve to restore substantially the average prices beginning in 1929 is supported by unquestionable and unquestioned experience in the price history of all civilized countries."

CLUB PATRONS TO TESTIFY

Subpenas were being served today on 32 persons who were at the Rhythme Club, Saw Mill Run boulevard, when it was raided by county detectives early last Sunday. They will be called to testify before the December grand jury.

Chief George W. Murren obtained the names of the patrons by having the detectives copy license numbers of cars parked outside the club.

Tarentum Youth Shot During Hunt

Clare Burgerstock, 23, of 615 Second street, Tarentum, is in the Allegheny Valley Hospital suffering gunshot wounds in the legs, accidentally received when he and two companions were hunting yesterday in Tiel Hollow.

Clarence Peters, of 615 Second street, fired at a rabbit coming from the brush, and part of the charge struck Burgerstock, it was reported.

High School Students Will Present Play

"Little Miss Fix-it," a comedy, will be presented by the sophomore class of St. John the Baptist High School at the Little Theater, 3660 Liberty avenue, Monday and Tuesday nights. Helen Higgins will be in the principal role.

The Girl Who Won

By MAY CHRISTIE

CHAPTER XXIX.

"Would it make any difference if I weren't Mrs. Judson?" repeated Nollie very quietly as Tony and she sat by the lakeside.

Her heart thudded nervously. She kept her head down, twisting the stalk of wood anemone in her fingers, her profile a sweet loveliness.

There was something about that delicate beauty of hers that had drawn him irresistibly.

Impossible to forget her. She was so different from the other girls he knew. There was a fragrance, a dewiness about her.

As though life hadn't really touched her. As though she were a being set apart from all the roughness and the crudity.

A flying sweetness—a fragility.

He looked down at her bright head with its filigree of sunshine spattering through the leaves above making a gay pattern. He saw the purity of her pale and delicate features that were like a cameo. There was something infinitely appealing about her.

He had found it well nigh impossible to believe she was a widow with a breezy reputation, and three marriages behind her—each mating uncongenial.

He had thrust the thought away from him when in the presence of this girl.

She had seemed so fresh—unspoiled. With the dewiness of early morning hovering about her.

An enigma, wasn't she?

A lovely one! And those eyes of hers, as blue as the lake when the sky was a bright azure.

If he could only see to the bottom of those eyes and read her very soul!

"Would it make any difference if you WEREN'T Mrs. Judson?" he repeated in a puzzled tone. "Why, Gloria, you'd always be YOU . . . but why make a mystery of it?"

MORE COMPLICATED

She said, very low, and feeling very nervous: "I never sought to make a mystery in the first instance."

He lifted the soft hand that held the wood anemone and his fingers closed over it.

"My dear, don't be afraid of me. If you only knew what this meeting means to me—how I've longed for it—"

"How on earth so?" There was a quick anxiety in his tone, like a challenge.

Wasn't she free? Was this lovely young girl married?

Or were there entanglements in her young life?—she with the face that at this moment had the white purity of a snowdrop.

If there were dark things in her life, he'd thrust them to one side . . . he'd teach her to forget them . . . though the knowledge that she wasn't as he wanted her to be would hurt him terribly.

For when an Irishman falls in love with the one woman in the world, he sets her on a pedestal as a goddess, and kneels at her feet, worshipping her purity.

Of such was Tony O'Brien fashioned in his inmost heart, flirt though he had been. He was an idealist.

And the image of this pale and pretty face, this sweet and modest manner had stirred up all the dreams in him.

LONGED FOR HER

The ideal girl he wanted her to be. She was. He wouldn't permit her to step from her pedestal.

So now he said, in a husky tone—"I should never believe a single thing against you anyhow, Gloria."

She raised her blue, blue eyes to his. There was a glint of tears in them—or was it just their natural loveliness.

But the eyes looked bravely into his. It was as though something were flung out between them to each other, like a shining bridge.

"What made you say that thing just now?" gently she asked of him.

"Because, Gloria, everything about you is so sweet and wonderful. It isn't your beauty alone that's made me long to see you again—to dream of this meeting. It's YOU yourself—the real girl, who seemed to radiate such character—such—oh! it's an indefinable word—I suppose one would call it 'charm' in a woman. It's something that you've got that no one else has got whom I have met—something elusive and appealing. I suppose, Gloria—"—and his hold on her hand tightened—"the best definition of what I mean, is "the bloom on a woman.' "

"Won't you go on? It's—beautiful to hear you talk, even though—Tony—I'm the most ordinary person."

DREAMS RARE

"You're not. You filled my heart with dreams. So beautiful I'm afraid to tell you them."

"For fear I should shatter those dreams?" said Nollie softly, her eyes misted with emotion.

"You would?"

"No. I should treat them very gently, because dreams are rare in this hard world, and the loveliest things in life are our illusions."

"Illusions? Then you don't think dreams come true?" he asked her very quietly, his eyes seeking her downcast face. But she wouldn't look at him.

She leaned forward plucking another anemone and regarding it speculatively.

"In a little hour this flower will fade—"

Silence between them.

She thought: "What have I said? I wanted to meet his mood—to make him talk—this isn't me at all, to be so cynical—"

And Tony asked of himself: "What kind of a life has this girl had? Who can she be? What has life done to her?"

A blue jay perched on a branch nearby, his wings a bright flash in the sunshine. He regarded the young couple arrogantly, as though they'd no right to intrude on him.

There was the plop of a trout nearby, and a kingfisher flew over the water.

Silence. Peace. And beauty.

And a man and a girl with "the long, long thoughts of youth" in their hearts . . . irresistibly drawn to each other.

Synopsis

Nollie Day, stenographer at an exclusive hotel, is befriended by wealthy Mrs. Judson, a widow. Nollie goes to a theater in place of Mrs. Judson, where she meets handsome Tony O'Brien. She reveals her own identity but Tony does not hear her. Next day, Tony telephones and learns Mrs. Judson has gone abroad. Nollie wants to clear her identity, but is unable to get in touch with Tony. Nollie secures a new position as secretary to Jack Brilling, of Galbraith & Co. Miss Galbraith, Brilling's fiancee, is jealous and warns Nollie. Mrs. Judson returns and gives Nollie a letter Tony had written her abroad. They learn that Tony is on vacation. Mrs. Judson asks Nollie to become her secretary and visit her ranch. Nollie accompanies Mrs. Judson to a garden party and meets Rhoda Vane. Rhoda seems to dislike Nollie. Nollie and the widow leave for the ranch after inviting Rhoda. Nollie is surprised when she meets Tony near the ranch. He still thinks she is Mrs. Judson.

Shakespeare: Cymbeline)

Cymbeline, king of Britain, lost two sons mysteriously and banished Posthumus, secret husband of his daughter Imogene. Posthumus in Rome is tricked by Iachimo, who apparently proves the faithlessness of Imogene by a bracelet, stolen from her. The enraged husband orders his servant Pisanio to kill Imogene. Instead, he sets her in man's attire on the way to find her husband. A Roman army with Iachimo as an officer moves to conquer Britain. Posthumus follows. Imogene is captured by the invaders, who are defeated by Cymbeline. Found among the captives, Imogene is reunited with Posthumus after Iachimo confesses his slander. The lost sons also are found among the defenders, the kidnaper baring his deed.

MAXIMILIAN WATCHING DEPARTURE OF THE FRENCH

Expecting that the Civil War would disrupt the United States, originator and defender of the Monroe Doctrine, Napoleon III, French Emperor, overthrew the Mexican government and established Maximilian, the Austrian Archduke, as emperor (1863) despite Lincoln's protests. In 1867 a U. S. Army approached the Rio Grande and the French withdrew, leaving Maximilian to his fate. He was seized and executed by the Mexicans (June 19, 1867). (U. S. Hist.-Civil War)

After Napoleon's throne toppled, rulers and diplomats gathered in Vienna to reconstruct Europe, chiefly according to the wishes of the five dominating powers (Austria, Britain, France, Russia, Prussia). In the main, the old dynasties were restored, while wishes of the peoples—rooted in economic, racial, linguistic ties—were ignored. A loose confederation of the German states was designed to protect Austria; for the same reason little principalities of Italy, Poland was divided, etc.

The restraint of civil liberties and heavy taxation upon the masses paved the way for future struggles for liberation. (World History)

PORIFERA AND COELENTERATA, SECOND AND THIRD PHYLUM OF ANIMALS

Porifera, sponges, consist of about 2,500 species thriving mostly in warmer oceans, few in fresh water. They are a mass of animal cells, working more or less as one organism, which may break up into any number of living pieces.

When young they become attached to some matter and develop into a vase-shaped adult, dotted by pores through which tiny cilia drive the water, passing out at the top through a central cavity. From this water they capture food.

They have no muscle - or nerve-tissues, no excretory or respiratory system, no sense organs and react sluggishly to stimulation. Our bath sponges are their horny skeletons.

Coelenterata, (4,500 species) consist of polypes (above, right), medusae (the jelly fish belong to the latter), which are simple bags of living material with central cavity through which foods, waste and reproductive cells are carried by the seawater.

BIG SHELL-BARK HICKORY (Carya Laciniosa)

With ten other species it belongs to the walnut family (Juglandaceae). Its leaves are alternate, pointed, serrate. Staminate flowers are hairy, in aments; pistillate rusty-wooly, in large spikes. Fruit is ovoid with thick husk, covering thick walled strongly pointed nut, containing a sweet, deeply lobed kernel. Range: New York to Arkansas; prefers wet, rich soil. Valuable for lumber and nuts. Its wood is heavy, hard, strong, used for handles and vehicle parts.

LONG FLAME LIMEKILN

Calcium oxide (CaO, quick lime) respectively calcium hydroxide [Ca (OH) 2], slaked lime is used wherever cheap alkali is desired as in manufacturing of sodium-potassium-hydroxide, ammonia, water softening, mortar making, etc.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Paris is interested in a new hairdress, that is a bit freaky to say the least. We're not suggesting that the beauty class adopt it, we're only passing on the tidings sent in by our special Paris agent. Locks are not waved. They are brushed up toward the crown of the head, front and back and sides—you have to have elegant little, shell-like ears to stand that, we'll say—and from the center of the forehead straight back to the nape of the neck march an array of curls or small puffs. How stay they there? We knew you'd ask that. Small combs, the color of the hair, and curved to fit the head, hold up the curly crest.

Lightweights must condition themselves if they are to look "purty" in this season's fashions which call for rounded slimness.

Skinny shanks will expand if given a long walk every day. Swinging Indian clubs will make arms fuller. Massage at night with coco butter, together with a cold water sponging in the morning develops the bust.

To put fat on ribs and elsewhere, top off each meal with a glass of milk and cream, equal parts, eat your breakfast food every morning, down crackers and milk at bedtime. Six bonbons a day will keep angles away. Exercise moderately, sleep nine hours every night, be cheerful.

The Teachers Play It Now

Look at Valley River Teachers playing North Dakota Science. It takes place way out in Wahpeton. Last year Science beat Teachers, 30 to 0.

Then the Oshkosh Teachers play Stevens Point Teachers at Oskosh. And Wayne Teachers take on Springfield Teachers at Wayne. We knew those teachers would get into the game sooner or later.

That's right. Why study hard all your life just for a chair in a university when you can go out on a football field and sit down wherever you want to?

Cedar Fall Teachers wangle around with Ypsilanti Teachers in the town of the same name as Ypsilanti. Football has become such a brainy game that it has gotten out of the students' control. Now, the professors kick one another around the sodded classroom and send out for a quick lunch.

If you think this is the cackles, take a look at the West Liberty Teachers lining up against Glenville Teachers at West Liberty. Our records state that West Liberty copped last season, 13 to 9. And while Glenville hasn't got a new team their laundry did come back last September. Anything can happen now. It is a game of surprises.

Murray Teachers are stepping a trifle out of focus by playing Tennessee Tech at Cookeville. The 1932 contest was a scoreless tie. The Techs ain't teachers. But who can tell what will happen if you are kicked in the head often enough?

The Trenton Teachers are optimistic over today's game with Kutztown Teachers at Trenton. Their last score of 18 to 0, favor Trenton, might have been bigger if the dean hadn't insisted on grabbing the ball from the proctor. They caught the monitor body-checking at a nudist colony and he was ruled off. The school board lost three professors by graduation when they failed to swing their home precincts, in the campaign to purchase turtle-shell rims for the prexy's spare tires.

All we want to prove is that the teachers are playing football. Why be a hermit in a classroom and be forced to open a window to hear the sounds of happy laughter and joyful predictions?

And that must be the answer. The professors were lonely.

Armistice Day

Nation, Now Gripped in Economic Strife, Should Cherish Spirit of the Day

Armistice Day will this year be observed with very different feelings from those which marked its earlier celebrations.

Originally a day signalizing the victory for the Allies, the intervening years have shown the victory far from being so complete as was supposed.

The triumph of the allied arms proved to be the opening of a new and fiercer conflict—the battle with want, unemployment, economic breakdown and world-wide depression. We are in the midst of this struggle. The issue is still obscure.

We thought the victory had been for democracy. But we have seen throughout the world a falling away of faith in democratic institutions.

Many of us were so simple as to think that the Armistice meant the end of war; but in the years that followed we have seen the failure to achieve international disarmament and the collapse of the efforts toward organized peace. The phantom of war is as close to our lives as it ever was.

Armistice Day, nevertheless, has a meaning for us which should not be lost. We must cherish the spirit of the day and try to draw near to it.

Let us always remember that the day is dedicated to the appeasement of hostility, to the reconcilement of enemies, to peace among the nations.

If these objectives seem to elude our grasp, we must nevertheless continue the struggle to attain them.

The day will remind us how vain is the expectation of final and enduring results. Destinations, which we strain to reach, turn out to be new points of departure. Results which are expected to be definite and conclusive are quickly seen to be only fresh beginnings.

Unceasing change, the shifting of objectives, the constant renewal of effort—these are the ways of men. Faith must find in the struggle, the nourishment which it requires. Therefore let us be PREPARED, both as individuals and as a nation, to do our DUTY and OUR HELPFUL BEST, until the world shall come upon calmer times.

An armistice marks only a pause in the struggle, not its end. And Armistice Day—a day of proud memory—must also be one of ever-fresh dedication.

But while we give our moral sanctions to the ideals of world peace, let us not neglect the realities of the times in which we live.

World peace may come. We hope it will. But it is far from attainment in a world yet tortured by rivalries and jealousies and warlike dangers.

One of the best decisions of the Roosevelt administration—and one which the American people patriotically support—has been its policies to restore the efficiency of our Army and Navy, not as a threat to others, but as an assurance of our own tranquility.

A Comprehensive Program

The Legislature Should Be Given Wide Latitude—Brief Comment on Local News.

Word comes from Harrisburg that the Legislature will not be limited to a few emergency subjects at the special session convening next Monday, but will be authorized to deal with problems covering a wide field. This is as it should be. Proposals such as those on which the voters expressed their opinions last Tuesday might well be acted upon now. Procrastination is undesirable.

The longer the session of the Legislature the greater will be its expense. But an expenditure now may permit a saving in 1935. Legislation enacted at the present time will not have to be enacted at the regular session, and consequently it should be shorter than usual. It is desirable, too, that the legislators should act while the people's mandates are still ringing in their ears.

Some of the members of the Legislature are believed to be reluctant to vote on certain of these issues because they are afraid they will antagonize the people and that this will be hurtful to them and their party in the primary election next spring. But it is against the best interests of the people that they should be permitted to dodge accountability.

The answer to those who argue that because of the expense a long session is undesirable and that a long session can be avoided only by narrowly limiting the scope of the legislative program is that if the members of the General Assembly should get together in a spirit of reason and with due consideration for the public welfare a great deal of legislation could be enacted very quickly.

Let us hope that the experience of last spring, when months were frittered away in futile squabbling, will be avoided. It can be avoided if the legislators will behave like sensible businessmen instead of like selfish politicians. There must be more co-operation and less stubbornness, and that applies to Gov. Pinchot as well as to the leaders of the Republican organization.

Apropos of highway safety, the Pittsburgh Motor Club reports that the number of pedestrians killed by automobiles in Pennsylvania thus far during 1933 is the largest for that period in three years. Most walkers, it seems, are too confident of the ability or willingness of motorists to look out for them. And most motorists, it may be added, are too confident of the ability or willingness of pedestrians to get out of their way. By far the greater share of the responsibility rests on the motorist.

The Allegheny County Real Estate Owners and Taxpayers League continues to demand a cut in school taxes, and, of course, it is right that the taxes should be no higher than is necessary to give every child in Pittsburgh a sound, well-rounded elementary and high school education. But there must be no lowering of our city educational standards.

Mrs. Annie Besant, high priestess of theosophy, who lectured in Pittsburgh several years ago, died recently at the age of 86. She believed her soul will return to earth in another body. Why she believed in reincarnation is set forth in an entertaining article in tomorrow's issue of the American Weekly, the magazine distributed with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

Just as Jiggs was about to take a bath Maggie called him on the telephone. She talked and talked, not permitting him to put in a word, and the consequences were terrible. The incident is pictured hilariously in "Bringing Up Father" in tomorrow's issue of Puck, the Comic Weekly section of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

'The Bastile Has Failen!'

Yes, the grim and hateful stronghold
Has been taken by the people.
They have stormed the frowning ramparts,
And this ugly modern Bastile,
Thought impregnable, has fallen,
And above the tyrants' towers
Floats the banner of the victors,
Emblem of a better era.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—A chalky, drizzly day. A good one for pondering the value of friendships. Ten treasured friends—three last year—have passed beyond mortal vision the past five years. Subtract 10 staunch friends from a rather cloistered life and you have an aching bleakness.

The astonishing angle of my friendships has been tolerance. That is the keystone of all undying human ties—tolerance. Few have it. Next comes that utterly disarming naivete — frankness. Will Hogg exemplified the charm of candor more than any friend I ever had.

He believed and practiced there should be no evasion between friends. If you were his friend and invited him to dinner he might razor bluntly: "No, thanks, I'd rather not." Rightly, he did not feel that what seemed to others a stubborn creak needed oiling in sincere friendship.

I have two friends on a world tour together. Irregularities of travel honed them to a keen edge. One day in Rio one barked to the other: "I'm getting sick of you and you of me." They agreed to go separate ways two weeks and join up again. A flimsy friendship could not ride through that.

One of the reasons why I have often tweaked the log-rolling Algonquin crowd is because of their vicious back-biting. I have heard some of them say the most despicable and caustic things about the others. And the next time I would see them they would be all sitting in each other's laps. My faults add up a grand total, but hypocrisy is not one of them. If I don't like a person I refuse to speak. That at least gives him an idea.

* * *

A truism about friendship is this: Firmness and age, as with trees, only flourish in good soil. That's why crooks never remain pals long. Thinnest friendships are gushiest. And bustling geniality is always unstable. Look at France!

Enduring friendships are bulwarked in the Ruth and Naomi saga: "Whither thou goest, etc." In life's unalterable selfishness this is seldom attained. I do not wish to be misconceived. I haven't a surplus of such loyalty. But it does exist.

* * *

This is what I mean. In Paris one time Lee Olwell took me to dinner at Foyot's with the late Dr. George Dixon, long the personal physician of Pierpont Morgan and E. H. Harriman. Dr. Dixon in the closing years of life transplanted himself in foreign soil, away from things dear to him and the city he loved, to minister to a college mate of whom he was fond and who could not be moved.

* * *

I'm cynical about those buttery friendships so highly sentimentalized among Broadway's chance children. Where are the Clayton, Jackson, Durantes of yesteryear? What sentimentalists came to Ziegfeld's, Dillingham's or Earl Carroll's aid when life laid them out like a rug? The boys who stand transfixed and tear-dimmed chanting "Dear Old Pal O' Mine" at de luxe bars usually find the lowly Bowery the place for a free meal.

* * *

Right now more people stand despairingly before a world's about-face than ever. Trembling hands reach from shadowy doorways in each block. One, I think, who patrols a block in East Fifty-sixth street, is a walking sermon of the times. Around his neck an ironical placard: "I had a world of friends!"

* * *

Like so many, his friendships had the stability of smoke rings. In an atmosphere of placidity friends, like smoke rings, clung pleasantly about him. Hit by disturbing air currents, they spread, thinned and drifted away. How I go on!

* * *

In all the experimental propping for an upset universe, I hear only coldly calculated theorizing with the stiff bowing of the stately minuet. Nobody has grabbed a partner and swung off in a do-si-do and balance-all. Friendliness is the ticket. Charlie Schwab built up his vast steel enterprises with it.

* * *

Nations might be built up in the same fashion. Instead, they're snarling. Everybody can add grist to the mill. I'm going right now and tell the hired girl to take the rest of the day off and take her fellow to the Music Hall on my pass. Look at me right through here! See the sweetness and light. I'm one of the Friendship Boys!

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

'Lead, Kindly Light!'

How the years fold back, like dark clouds parting before some great, fixed star!

And there you are, a child again, starting from a troubled sleep—hearing the patter of rain on an old tin roof—crying out for your mother!

Then you wake—your tired middle-aged self; your eyes blurred with tears.

And yet is it quite gone—that remembered beauty? For in some strange way you have been comforted. Did she really hear you—that mother whose voice has not answered for so many years? Were you for that instant really a little child again, loving and trusting, without doubt and fear?

So at the scent of a flower, at the sight of a curving hill, at the sound of an old hymn, the years will roll away. And there, once more will be the trail unwinding in the still, bright light.

Tired tonight? Wishing, with all your discouraged heart and bewildered brain, that the years would turn back for you—give you once more, just for an instant, the peace and the faith you knew as a child? Yes? Then, listen!

"LEAD, KINDLY LIGHT—"

(Oh, how quickly it comes back, my dear! How easily you remember—you, who thought you would never remember again!)

"LEAD, KINDLY LIGHT,
"AMID TH' ENCIRCLING GLOOM,
"LEAD THOU ME ON:
"THE NIGHT IS DARK
"AND I AM FAR FROM HOME,
"LEAD THOU ME ON!"

(If only somewhere you could clutch a hand. Someone who cared, and who could understand. Once—but so long!—you thought that you could go alone. But now—)

"KEEP THOU MY FEET,
"I DO NOT ASK TO SEE
"THE DISTANT SCENE:
"ONE STEP ENOUGH FOR ME."

(The distant scene? God, only you know what that scene will hold. These troubled days! The changes come too soon. Battered and weary, we would lay our burden down. But something holds us. Is it your hand, God?)

We cannot see you. Is there proof you care? This only—in the darkness we have felt you there! Through all the nightmare of our sin and shame some secret Presence has burned in us like a flame. Through bitter loss and failure, pain and fear, some voice has whispered, "Child, be steady; I am here!"

"SO LONG THY POWER
"HATH BLEST ME,
"SURE IT WILL
"STILL LEAD ME ON
"O'ER MOOR AND FEN,
"O'ER CRAG AND TORRENT, TILL
"THE NIGHT IS GONE."

(And then, my father . . . then? Will there be rest at last for those who are so tired? Will there by joy for those who've wept so long? And praise for those whose fumbling hands have failed? And cleansing for the poor, weak souls who've sinned. And maybe—maybe—will we see them once again?)

"THE NIGHT IS GONE!
"THOSE ANGEL FACES SMILE
"WHICH I HAVE LOVED
"LONG SINCE . . .
"AND LOST AWHILE!"

(So dark now, God. But you have seen so many mornings come. Oh, help me stumble through this darkness safely home!)

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

All the snappy haberdashery and brilliant repartee in the world do not impress a woman as much as one gesture of gallantry.

Even love can be "gagged" to death. And any woman who has lived with an irrepressible "wit" can sympathize with that singer who wants her marriage dissolved because her husband sprang "too many gags."

When we are young, we fancy that love-making is a matter of technique; when we are older, we know that the only thing important about it is the enthusiasm.

The alimoniacs are wrecking the marriage market, says Reno Ruth. A man is easily scared, and he's awfully wary of a proposition which looks like nothing but an expensive honeymoon trip, followed by a life sentence to pay weekly installments on a dead love.

The history of most divorces could be written on a greenback, and the "villain" of the plot is the little old Bank-Roll.

Funny, how a woman can bear up and recover from the loss of a great love; but to be the loser in a foolish little romance, somehow, leaves a pain in her vanity which lasts like chronic rheumatism.

* * *

Lots of sophisticates are convinced that "love" is an emotion which went out with horse-hair sofas. But when love goes out of fashion, all the beauty-shops will go out of business, all the screen stars will be leaping from windows and all the editors, publishers and radio singers will probably commit hari kari or go to padded cells.

A woman is as young as she can make a man THINK she looks.

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

In Gaining You

What have I gained in gaining you?
An earth more fair, a sky more blue,
A glorious promise with each dawn,
A star of hope when day is gone,
An armor for my weary breast
That gives me peace, that gives me rest,
A universe grown strangely sweet,
A self more balanced and complete.

Since you have come, what have I gained?
A life grown purer, and unstained
By any falsehood, any fear,
A sense of heaven very near;
A quickened insight into hearts
Pierced through by sorrow's flying darts,
A knowledge of my brother's need,
And love and pity for my creed!

Exhuming Technocracy

By ROBERT H. HEMPHILL
Financial Authority

MY editorial "THE GHOST OF TECHNOCRACY" created wide comment, largely approval, some violent criticism.

One editor devoted a column or more of his front page to a direct personal answer.

In the current (October) issue of Harper's Magazine, published a few days after my editorial, Fleta Campbell Springer reports an official session of the N. R. A. under the title "THE N. R. A. GOES INTO ACTION" curiously using similar language. She says:

"There was a ghost at this statistical feast, which now and then materialized sufficiently to be recognized, the ghost of our dear departed friend technocracy."

Referring to one of the industrialists present she says:

"He spoke of the machine's enormous increase in production of goods per single man-power and the consequent creation of a permanent army of unemployed," etc. . . . "General Johnson replied: 'Of course we are all zealous protagonists of the thesis you are developing and that was the basis of this law . . . What you have said so far is part of our Bible.'"

The purpose of my editorial was to point out the danger of leaning so heavily, at a critical time, on a doctrine which is open to debate.

Personally I think that in anticipating a permanent unemployed class, the Technocrats are all wet — that they are looking at the future through the wrong end of the telescope.

LET'S turn it around and take a brief glance or two at the highlights.

Henry Ford dreamed of every American family with a car—TWENTY-EIGHT MILLION cars. There were not enough mechanics in the country to build them so he HAD to design automatic machinery.

He missed his first estimate by a wide margin.

We know now that there are at least SEVENTY-FIVE MILLION adults in these United States alone, who should have—who each actually NEEDS his own car.

Some need more than one.

We will have to redesign our present antiquated machinery to make it possible to build them.

Then we will have to think of the BILLION or more in other countries who also need them, and the millions and millions of miles of roads which will have to be constructed and—well you go on with the picture.

I WILL not be sure wheat is, or can be, overproduced until the NINE HUNDRED MILLION people who are now undernourished and who have never tasted it have the opportunity of eating it daily—all they want—have been brought up to OUR normal standard of living.

I am NOT convinced that California oranges and grapefruit are, or ever can be, overproduced until every child and adult in America is supplied with his necessary morning drink, and then my thoughts will turn to the uncounted millions, hundreds of millions in other lands to whom the dehydrated, life-giving, vitamin-bearing juice may be shipped, when the concentrating processes which will preserve all the volatile aromatic oils have been perfected.

These are but minor incidents in the enormous job before us—in every department the same almost unlimited possibilities exist.

I LOOK at the civilized and semi-civilized world and find that because of our great natural resources, our wonderful technological capacity and development, our engineering genius, our mechanical ability, our skill in organization, we, a nation of 125,000,000, have progressed so far that our transactions necessary to our normal standard of living are equal to the total transactions of THE REMAINDER OF THE WORLD.

To me, the destruction of food while any in the world remain hungry, the destruction of fabric while any remain naked or threadbare, the restraint in technological research while humanity has one important fact to learn, is a confession that those whose duty is to devise the mechanism of barter and exchange have signally failed society—the outstanding failure in an otherwise amazing march of civilization, whose goal it is impossible to visualize.

I revolve in my mind, not only the fact that automobile development has CREATED activity for the millions who build and care for them, but I think of the billions of hours which are consumed in USING THEM.

I wonder; not if the hours of labor should be shortened, but how civilization will find the time, in future years, to USE the wonderful devices which are yet to come, and, with a firm confidence in the eternal fitness of things, I look forward to that time, when we must of necessity divide our waking hours between production and USE of our produced facilities.

Until we approach that period, which, in my humble opinion, will automatically solve all these questions, I am urging those whose minds are technically trained, to devote themselves exclusively to the design of better mechanisms of exchange, the failure of which has abruptly arrested our progress and brought us to this tragic situation.

Cuban Turmoil May Force United States to Act

By James T. Williams, Jr.

CONDITIONS throughout the Island of Cuba seem swiftly to be going from bad to worse. The worse they get, the harder it will be for the Roosevelt administration to discharge American responsibility under the Platt Amendment without American intervention.

Under the Platt Amendment, Cuba acquiesces in the right of the United States to say that she shall never "put herself in the hands of any other power, whatever her necessities, and in our right to insist upon the maintenance of free and orderly government throughout her limits."

Cuba further engages under this amendment never to contract a public debt, the service upon which cannot be met from the ordinary revenues which Cuba collects.

It is a matter of common knowledge and of incontrovertible fact that Cuba has for a long time been deprived of the protection of the kind of government in Cuba which the United States guarantees under the Platt Amendment to maintain.

Unless such a government is soon set up by the Cuban people themselves, the compulsion of events there and elsewhere will force American intervention as a last resort, despite all efforts of the Roosevelt administration to avert it.

Roosevelt's Heritage From Predecessors

TO DATE the President has had a free hand in dealing with the problems arising from Cuba's desperate plight. Public sentiment for the most part has supported his efforts to bring order out of chaos without intervention.

One reason for this support is to be found in the general realization that the Cuban problem was inherited by the Roosevelt administration from the administrations of Coolidge and Hoover.

Had either the Coolidge or Hoover administration discharged to the full American responsibility under the Platt Amendment, the Cuban people would not have been subjected to the intolerable tyranny of government by political assassination which was their bitter portion during the last years of Machado's brutal rule.

When Machado coerced the Cuban congress into adding three years to his constitutional term of office, the government at Washington informed him in advance that such an action would be in violation of the Cuban constitution. Machado believed that the United States did not really mean to do anything about it, and events proved him right.

American intervention in Cuba, under the administration of Theodore Roosevelt, was entirely peaceful. It paved the way for a popular election which the Cuban people desired.

It is not improbable that American intervention in Cuba under the administration of Franklin D. Roosevelt might prove as peaceful as was that of 1906. But the first Roosevelt took no chances when he intervened. He was prepared for the worst, and the demonstration of force which he made in Cuba at the outset of intervention enabled him to avert the use of force.
